Militia Turns Back 3,000 Coal Pickets; Harlan Pits Resume

State Troops Arrive in Harlan Crisis

Their machine guns plainly evident, these were the first two truckloads of National Guard troops who swarmed into "Bloody Harlan, Ky.," to face a tense labor situation. Gov. A. B. Chandler ordered troops into Harlan when coal mine owners prepared to resume operations after refusing in New York to sign a union agreement. United Mine Workers' officials voiced strong objections to mine reopening.

Machine Guns Are Trained on Those Attempting to Picket Kentucky Area; No Massing Allowed

One Man Killed

Non-Union Miner Slain at Yancey; Deputy Tells of Shooting Man

Harlan, Ky., May 15 (AP)—Three thousand coal miners, bent on picketing, were turned back by National Guardsmen with machine guns today as men returned to the Harlan county pits under troop protection.

The miners turned back by the guardsmen milled about the streets of Harlan apparently waiting word from their leaders.

Militiamen were sent to mines throughout the county during the night. Machine guns were set up along the roadside and any effort of pickets to gather in large numbers brought quick orders to disperse.

Colonel Roy W. Easley of the state troops said:

"We will allow peaceful picketing in reasonable numbers but will not permit the massing of men at any point."

The colonel warned that if the men continued "to loiter about Harlan streets they will be given military escort out of town."

No Coal Brought Out

No coal will be brought from the mines until tomorrow or Wednesday, operators said. Those who wanted to work without a union contract were busy checking and repairing pit trackage and timbering.

Operators in the Harlan field, where one man already has been killed and another wounded, refused to sign an agreement with the United Mine Workers last Saturday in New York when 15 other soft coal operating areas approved a union shop. Today was the first time most of the mines had been open since work stopped April 1.

Civil and military authorities said the killing and shooting "had no connection" with labor difficulties but orders were signed calling 200 additional National Guardsmen to duty.

George Titler, secretary and treasurer of the Harlan U. M. W. district, declared:

"Instead of peace and no intimidation, the troops will not let us go within six miles of a coal camp. They have a bridge blocked a mile and a half from Kitts and are blocking state highways."

Colonel Easley said troops had been posted as guards along the highways entering Harlan county to prevent an influx of miners from other fields.

One Man Killed

Even before the test between operators and union miners as to strength in this field torn for years by labor strife, the county again lived up to "Bloody Harlan."

While National Guard troops, ordered here by Governor A. B. Chandler 557 strong, rolled in on trucks from many towns in the southern end of the state, one non-union miner was killed at Yancey and his brother-in-law jailed for the fatality.

A deputy sheriff told of having shot a young man on a main street of the city within a block of National Guard headquarters, when he refused to submit to arrest for drunkenness. Weak from the loss of blood from wounds in both legs, the man was taken to a hospital.

Both civil and military authorities quickly gave out statements that neither incident had "any connection with labor troubles."

But it shortly was announced that Brigadier General Ellerbee Carter, commanding the troops, had signed an order for additional 200 soldiers to be moved into the county immediately.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Chad Nolan said the man killed at Yancey, a short distance south of Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini toured their frontier districts bordering France today as Polish and French general staff officers met in Paris for consultations.

Mussolini dedicated a new plant of the vast Fiat works, makers of Italian automobiles, tanks, airplane motors, machine-guns and other war equipment, at Turin, Italy.

'Economic War'

Signalling the start of his tour yesterday, Il Duce told 50,000 spectators, who alternated their cheers for him with jeers for France, that "the great democracies" were warring against Italy and Germany on economic ground.

He declared no "problems big enough or acute enough to justify a war" existed in Europe but urged that if "knots in European politics" did not call for the sword they should be "untied once and for all because sometimes a hard reality is preferable to a long uncertainty."

His address was regarded generally moderate and pacific, although diplomatic circles in Paris read between the lines an urgent notice to France to yield to Fascist colonial aspirations at her expense. Il Duce's indirect references to the French-Italian issue again evoked the crowd's cries of "Tunisia!" and "Savoy!"

The Fuehrer and his staff, starting their inspection near Aachen, on the Belgian frontier, caused some quarters to believe there was more than coincidence that he and his axis partner shoul dmake such trips at the same time.

Plans Inspection

Hitler was said to be planning an inspection of fortifications also in the east after assuring himself everything is secure along the formidable "limes" line facing France and Switzerland.

Polish War Minister General Tadeusz Kasprzycki arrived in Paris for military conversations with members of the French general staff in which, French sources said, they would discuss details of the British-French pledges to help Poland defend her independence.

In Moscow, the Soviet Russian government newspaper Izvestia gave emphatic approval to the British-Turkish mutual assistance accord. Soviet Russia still is a potential member of the line-up in which Britain and France now have included Poland, Rumania, Greece and Turkey.

Chicago Mother Says Her Gift of Blood Transfusion Finest Gift of All

Chicago, May 15 (AP)—Mrs. Laura Mc Carty's Mother's Day gift, in her own words, was "the finest a mother ever received," a blood transfusion.

For several weeks Mrs. McCarty, 73-year-old Robinson, Ill., resident, has been suffering from a malignant growth. Saturday doctors urged a blood transfusion.

Her six sons traveling in nearby states on business, were summoned. All were examined. It was found one son, Harry could match his mother's blood type and a transfusion was ordered.

Physicians said she "seemed improved."

Saturday afternoon, June 3, at 3:30 o'clock a Scout Circus of 10 acts for the benefit of the pubilc will be held. The circus will be a demonstration of the things Scouts do in their troops and the boys have been working hard to make this an outstanding show. That evening a big Council Campfire will be held, a feature of each previous camporee which has delighted every one of the campers. Sunday morning there will be a Protestant and Catholic field service and during the day the camp will break up.

500 Men Attend Holy Name Group Rites, Breakfasts

Societies of St. Peter's, St. Joseph's and Port Ewen Hear Several Leading Speakers

Two Catholic Churches of Kingston and one of Port Ewen held corporate, Holy Name Communion and breakfasts yesterday morning. Approximately 200 each attended the St. Joseph's and St. Peter's communion in the city and about 100 turned out in Port Ewen.

The Rev. Joseph D. Ostermann, a former assistant pastor at St. Peter's Church, celebrated the Mass and delivered the sermon and breakfast talk. Professor William R. White of Fordham University was the guest speaker at the St. Joseph's breakfast and the Very Rev. Martin J. Drury, pastor of St. Mary's Church and Dean of Ulster and Sullivan counties was guest speaker at the Port Ewen breakfast.

The men of St. Joseph's Church met for breakfast at the Governor Clinton Hotel following the 8 o'clock Mass. Included as guests of the men were 40 boy members of the parish and members of the graduating class of St. Joseph's School. Mass was celebrated by the Rev. John D. Simmons and a sermon on "Mother's Day" was delivered by the Rev. John P. McCaffrey, pastor of the church.

"Catholics and Labor Unions" was the subject of the talk given by Professor White at the Governor Clinton Hotel. He traced briefly the history of labor unions since the early use of machines and compared the earlier groups to those of today.

Labor disputes have always gone hand in hand with attempts to organize the workers, the speaker indicated. At the outset, he said, the courts were generally hostile to the causes of the workmen, but within the last 10 years their stand has been reversed.

Labor unions have attracted radical groups mainly because of this earlier pressure against labor, he pointed out. He urged his listeners to keep informed on labor and its problems and to become actively interested in labor movements and to discriminate

Collision at Fair and Pearl Upsets Brooklyn Car Shortly After Noon

Four persons were injured and two automobiles damaged when the two cars collided at Pearl and Fair streets about 1:40 o'clock Sunday afternoon. One of the cars was turned completely over by the force of the impact.

The car that was upset was driven by Harry Ferris of 462 Williams avenue, Brooklyn, and the four who were injured, were riding in his car. Advocates Seeking Support for Plan To Revise Levies

Harrison and Doughton Are Reported to Have Defunct Proposal for Conference With Officials

Two Factors

Yield of Corporate Taxes and GOP Support Work for Revision

Washington, May 15 (AP)—Congressional advocates of business tax revision sought administration support today for some compromise plan which would meet criticisms of present levies but avoid any reduction in federal revenue.

Chairmen Harrison (D., Miss.) of the Senate finance committee and Doughton (D., N. C.) of the House ways and means committee were reported to have a definite proposal for submission at a conference this afternoon with President Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau.

Both legislators were said to have advised the President previously that business tax revisions was certain to be undertaken at this session. Advocates of revision declare that two facts are working to their advantage:

Corporate taxes yielding $1,300,000,000 a year expire next December 31, requiring some action in advance if revenue is not to decline.

Senate Republicans have given assurance of support for "reasonable" changes.

Sounds Out Proponents

The administration already has sounded out several of those favoring revision on the advisability of continuing present corporate taxes and at the same time extending miscellaneous excise levies which expire soon.

At his Friday press conference, President Roosevelt indicated that the administration would leave the whole issue up to Congress, offering treasury suggestions as possible courses to follow but declining to support any one.

The President also said no system should lower the government income or permit legal tax evasions.

Some congressional leaders, believed to include Harrison, have hit upon a plan which they consider meets the suggestions of Mr. Roosevelt and business men.

It calls for abandonment of the undistributed profits tax, retention of the capital stock and excess profits levies, a flat 18 per cent corporate tax, and lower rates on corporations making $25,000 or less. Its proponents argue that such a plan would produce $2,000,000 a year more than the present system.

The present law requires corporation taxes of 16½ to 19 per cent, depending on the amount of profits distributed.

Another proposal, estimated to yield about the same as at present, calls for repeal of both undivided profits and capital stock taxes and substitution of a flat 22 per cent levy, with special rates for smaller corporations.

Hill Takes $331,348

Washington, May 15 (AP).—George Washington Hill, president of the American Tobacca Company, has received the highest 1938 compensation—$331,348—yet reported to the securities commission by American corporations. Hill took the lead from Walter Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, whose $209,000 for the year had topped an earlier compilation.

Murder Indictments Against Six Probable

Philadelphia Assistant District Attorney Says Evidence Would Be Presented in Several Cases —Calls Murder Ring Most Complex, Double-Crossing Gang He's Met

Philadelphia, May 15 (AP).—Murder indictments against at least half a dozen of the 24 persons held in connection with the eastern mass-murder syndicate will be sought this week, Assistant District Attorney Vincent P, McDevitt announced today.

He said evidence would be presented in as many cases "as we can reasonably put through." These may number "six or seven."

Only a few of those arrested have been indicted in the known deaths, already past 50. The first mass trials begin next week.

McDevitt called the murder ring "the most complex, double-dealing, double-crossing gang I've ever met."

He said investigators had discarded earlier theories that a single "master mind" directed the ring's schemes while subordinates did the "dirty work."

"The dominating influence probably was divided," he said.

McDevitt named Paul and Herman Petrillo, cousins, and Morris Bolber, also known as "Louie the Rabbi," as among those who shared ring leadership. Herman Petrillo has been convicted of first degree murder and faces electrocution. The others have been charged with murder.

"There were a couple more I wouldn't want to name at this moment," McDevitt added.

Close Relatives Held

He disclosed close relatives—as yet unidentified—of five new suspected victims are in custody. The bodies of four men and two women will be exhumed next week.

Meanwhile, police studied the possibility that an arson-bombing ring operated as a subsidiary of the slay for pay syndicate.

The frequently suggested possibility that leaders of the ring or their satellites did an arson-bombing business as a sideline came to the fore again. Dominick Caraffa, 47, was held without bail, charged with suspicion of burning down the home of Herman Petrillo, convicted of a poison murder, in an insurance plot in 1935.

Police officials who six months ago dismissed reports of the murder for insurance ring's activities as "impossible," were ready today to admit "anything is possible."

They've been convinced—by one amazing revelation pyramided over another in recent weeks.

Result of Work

The police investigators have this to show for their weeks of work:

Twenty-four persons behind bars accused of a part in the murders and two others in custody for questioning. Nearly half are widows.

A growing list of probable victims, which now stands at 52 and may eventually exceed 100.

Information that the gang operated over a 10-year period in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and possibly Delaware and many other eastern states.

Still unanswered, however, is the question:

"What became of the $100,000 insurance companies estimate was paid out on fraudulent claims?"

Many of those arrested, detec-

Rochester to Try New Stamps for Relief Recipients

Nation's First Trial of New Method to Distribute Surplus Foods on No Chiseling Basis

Rochester, N. Y., May 15 (AP).—Welfare authorities, relief recipients and grocers put the finishing touches today on the nation's first test of proposed distribution of surplus foods by stamps.

As grocers set up attractive displays of the foods—butter, eggs, flour, citrus fruits, cornmeal and beans—officials of the federal surplus commodities corporation prepared to distribute orange and blue stamps at the rate of $1.50 for every dollar.

The plan goes into effect tomorrow and relief agencies have announced they would cooperate by urging recipients to take their cash to the FSCC for redemption. Grocers, too, have promised to cooperate by signing pledge cards promising "no chiseling."

The plan, to be tested later in five other cities to determine availability for national use, works like this:

For a food allowance of, say, $5 in cash, the relief recipient obtains $5 in orange stamps and $2.50 in blue stamps. The orange stamps may be redeemed at grocery stores for any food desired, the blue stamps only for the surplus commodities.

The plan is expected to prove a double stimulus to the movement of surplus commodities. Not only will it encourage buying of more of these foods by welfare clients, but as grocers display them prominently, they will catch the eye of cash customers, FSCC officials explained.

From to time, as the situation changes, some commodities will be removed from the surplus list, others added. The relief recipient, however, always will get 50 per cent more food for his welfare money. Stamp customers will be treated in the same manner as cash customers.

Grocers will affix the stamps which they receive on special cards and present them to commercial banks, which will treat them simularly to the grocer's personal check. The banks in turn will receive cash for the stamps from the federal government.

Snite to Lourdes

Youth Who Lives in Special Respirator Will Make Trip to Famous Shrine

Miami, Fla., May 15 (AP)—Fred Snite, Jr., brave and cheerful despite his three year imprisonment in a life-giving respirator, rode northward in a private railroad car toward New York today on the first part of a cherished pilgrimage to the Shrine of Miracles at Lourdes, France.

With his parents, a doctor, five nurses, orderlies and two respirator experts, he will sail on the liner Normandie early tomorrow.

"This is Fred's trip," said his father. "He wanted to make it, so we arranged it. I hope he receives the inner satisfaction he seeks. If there also is a physical benefit, we shall be thankful."

Medical Association Reports to Annual Meeting on Its Plans for Standard Fees

St. Louis, May 15 (AP)—There are 606 reasons for going to a doctor in this country and the American Medical Association today reported to its annual meeting plans to see whether standard fees can be fixed for each one of these "visits." They range from office calls to postfortems.

In an effort to refute charges of standpatism in meeting the public's wishes for reduced costs, the board of trustees reported 450 new medical services have been set up by organized medicine's member societies. They try to reduce the cost of medical care mainly by two methods. One is giving full medical service and dividing a fixed fee among the physicians. The other is to assess members a fixed sum and distribute it to the sick.

Dr. Irvin Abell of St. Louis, the retiring president, struck verbally at two U. S. assistant attorney generals for activities outside the indictments in Washington against the AMA as an alleged monopoly.

One, he said, "gave releases to the press accusing the American Medical Association of illegal practices and threatening it with criminal prosecution, thereby promoting an antagonistic mental attitude."

The other, he charged in a public address in Milwaukee, outlined charges to the grand jury in this case, what the department of justice lawyers had learned, and the background of the controversy.

"From time immemorial," said Dr. Abell, "grand jury prosecutions have been presumed to be secret, in order to prevent antagonistic mental attitudes on the part of prospective jurymen. One cannot but wonder if the actions of these two attorneys are in harmony with the ideals of the American Bar Association."

Dr. Rock Sleyster of Wauwatosa, Wis., near Milwaukee, president-elect, charged government with trying to threaten medicine.

"The attention of this body in the past few years," he said, has been largely occupied with threats to the science of medicine by social and governmental agencies, ambitious to revolutionize orderly procedure in the continued development and distribution of medical care.

"Such egencies have promoted an impression that there has been a 'breakdown' in medicine as there has been in agriculture, industry, railroads, building and manufacture. We know this it not true.

"We know that medicine, in fact, is about the only major endeavor which has not failed but on the contrary has improved the quality of its service as well as its distribution during the depression years."

Senate Republicans have given assurance of support for "reasonable" changes.

Sounds Out Proponents

The administration already has sounded out several of those favoring revision on the advisability of continuing present corporate taxes and at the same time extending miscellaneous excise levies which expire soon.

At his Friday press conference, President Roosevelt indicated that the administration would leave the whole issue up to Congress, offering treasury suggestions as possible courses to follow but declining to support any one.

The President also said no system should lower the government income or permit legal tax evasions.

Some congressional leaders, believed to include Harrison, have hit upon a plan which they consider meets the suggestions of Mr. Roosevelt and business men.

It calls for abandonment of the undistributed profits tax, retention of the capital stock and excess profits levies, a flat 18 per cent corporate tax, and lower rates on corporations making $25,000 or less. Its proponents argue that such a plan would produce $2,000,000 a year more than the present system.

The present law requires corporation taxes of 16½ to 19 per cent, depending on the amount of profits distributed.

Another proposal, estimated to yield about the same as at present, calls for repeal of both undivided profits and capital stock taxes and substitution of a flat 22 per cent levy, with special rates for smaller corporations.

Hill Takes $331,348

Washington, May 15 (AP)—George Washington Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, has received the highest 1938 compensation—$331,348—yet reported to the securities commission by American corporations. Hill took the lead from Walter Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, whose $209,000 for the year had topped an earlier compilation.

Despite Nazi Stress

Berlin, May 15 (AP)—Germans drank 23,900,000 bottles of German champagne-type wine last year, 20 per cent more than in 1937 despite Nazi stress on totalism as practiced by Chancellor Hitler. French champagne prices are prohibitive for all but the wealthy.

Militia Turns Back 3,000 Coal Pickets; Harlan Pits Resume

State Troops Arrive in Harlan Crisis

Their machine guns plainly evident, these were the first two truckloads of National Guard troops who swarmed into "Bloody Harlan, Ky.," to face a tense labor situation. Gov. A. B Chandler ordered troops into Harlan when coal mine owners prepared to resume operations after refusing in New York to sign a union agreement. United Mine Workers' officials voiced strong objections to mine reopening.

Machine Guns Are Trained on Those Attempting to Picket Kentucky Area; No Massing Allowed

One Man Killed

Non-Union Miner Slain at Yancey; Deputy Tells of Shooting Man

Harlan, Ky., May 15 (AP)—Three thousand coal miners, bent on picketing, were turned back by National Guardsmen with machine guns today as men returned to the Harlan county pits under troop protection.

The miners turned back by the guardsmen milled about the streets of Harlan apparently waiting word from their leaders.

Militiamen were sent to mines throughout the county during the night. Machine guns were set up along the roadside and any effort of pickets to gather in large numbers brought quick orders to disperse.

Colonel Roy W. Easley of the state troops said.

"We will allow peaceful picketing in reasonable numbers but will not permit the massing of men at any point."

The colonel warned that if the men continued "to loiter about Harlan streets they will be given military escort out of town."

No Coal Brought Out

No coal will be brought from the mines until tomorrow or Wednesday, operators said. Those who wanted to work without a union contract were busy checking and repairing pit trackage and timbering.

Operators in the Harlan field, where one man already has been killed and another wounded, refused to sign an agreement with the United Mine Workers last Saturday in New York when 15 other soft coal operating areas approved a union shop. Today was the first time most of the mines had been open since work stopped April 1.

Civil and military authorities said the killing and shooting "had no connection" with labor difficulties but orders were signed calling 200 additional National Guardsmen to duty.

George Titler, secretary and treasurer of the Harlan U. M. W. district, declared:

"Instead of peace and no intimidation, the troops will not let us go within six miles of a coal camp. They have a bridge blocked a mile and a half from Kitts and are blocking state highways."

Colonel Easley said troops had been posted as guards along the highways entering Harlan county to prevent an influx of miners from other fields.

One Man Killed

Even before the test between operators and union miners as to strength in this field torn for years by labor strife, the county again lived up to "Bloody Harlan."

While National Guard troops, ordered here by Governor A. B. Chandler 557 strong, rolled in on trucks from many towns in the southern end of the state, one non-union miner was killed at Yancey and his brother-in-law jailed for the fatality.

A deputy sheriff told of having shot a young man on a main street of the city within a block of National Guard headquarters, when he refused to submit to arrest for drunkenness. Weak from the loss of blood from wounds in both legs, the man was taken to a hospital.

Both civil and military authorities quickly gave out statements that neither incident had "any connection with labor troubles."

But it shortly was announced that Brigadier General Ellerbee Carter, commanding the troops, had signed an order for additional 200 soldiers to be moved into the county immediately.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Chad Nolan said the man killed at Yancey, a short distance south of

Murder Indictments Against Six Probable

Philadelphia Assistant District Attorney Says Evidence Would Be Presented in Several Cases —Calls Murder Ring Most Complex, Double-Crossing Gang He's Met

Philadelphia, May 15 (AP).—Murder indictments against at least half a dozen of the 24 persons held in connection with the eastern mass-murder syndicate will be sought this week, Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt announced today.

He said evidence would be presented in as many cases "as we can reasonably put through." These may number "six or seven."

Only a few of those arrested have been indicted in the known deaths, already past 50. The first mass trials begin next week.

McDevitt called the murder ring "the most complex, double-dealing, double-crossing gang I've ever met."

He said investigators had discarded earlier theories that a single "master mind" directed the ring's schemes while subordinates did the "dirty work."

"The dominating influence probably was divided," he said.

McDevitt named Paul and Herman Petrillo, cousins, and Morris Bolber, also known as "Louie the Rabbi," as among those who shared ring leadership. Herman Petrillo has been convicted of first degree murder and faces electrocution. The others have been charged with murder.

"There were a couple more I wouldn't want to name at this moment," McDevitt added.

Close Relatives Held

He disclosed close relatives—as yet unidentified—of five new suspected victims are in custody. The bodies of four men and two women will be exhumed next week.

Meanwhile, police studied the possibility that an arson-bombing ring operated as a subsidiary of the slay for pay syndicate.

The frequently suggested possibility that leaders of the ring or their satellites did an arson-bombing business as a sideline came to the fore again. Dominick Caraffa, 47, was held without bail, charged with suspicion of burning down the home of Herman Petrillo, convicted of a poison murder, in an insurance plot in 1935.

Police officials who six months ago dismissed reports of the murder for insurance ring's activities as "impossible," were ready today to admit "anything is possible."

They've been convinced—by one amazing revelation pyramided over another in recent weeks.

Result of Work

The police investigators have this to show for their weeks of work:

Twenty-four persons behind bars accused of a part in the murders and two others in custody for questioning. Nearly half are widows.

A growing list of probable victims, which now stands at 52 and may eventually exceed 100.

Information that the gang operated over a 10-year period in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and possibly Delaware and many other eastern states.

Still unanswered, however, is the question:

"What became of the $100,000 insurance companies estimate was paid out on fraudulent claims?"

Many of those arrested, detec-

Rochester to Try New Stamps for Relief Recipients

Nation's First Trial of New Method to Distribute Surplus Foods on No Chiseling Basis

Rochester, N. Y., May 15 (AP).—Welfare authorities, relief recipients and grocers put the finishing touches today on the nation's first test of proposed distribution of surplus foods by stamps.

As grocers set up attractive displays of the foods—butter, eggs, flour, citrus fruits, cornmeal and beans—officials of the federal surplus commodities corporation prepared to distribute orange and blue stamps at the rate of $1.50 for every dollar.

The plan goes into effect tomorrow and relief agencies have announced they would cooperate by urging recipients to take their cash to the FSCC for redemption. Grocers, too, have promised to cooperate by signing pledge cards promising "no chiseling."

The plan, to be tested later in five other cities to determine availability for national use, works like this:

For a food allowance of, say, $5 in cash, the relief recipient obtains $5 in orange stamps and $2.50 in blue stamps. The orange stamps may be redeemed at grocery stores for any food desired, the blue stamps only for the surplus commodities.

The plan is expected to prove a double stimulus to the movement of surplus commodities. Not only will it encourage buying of more of these foods by welfare clients, but as grocers display them prominently, they will catch the eye of cash customers, FSCC officials explained.

From to time, as the situation changes, some commodities will be removed from the surplus list, others added. The relief recipient, however, always will get 50 per cent more food for his welfare money. Stamp customers will be treated in the same manner as cash customers.

Grocers will affix the stamps which they receive on special cards and present them to commercial banks, which will treat them simularly to the grocer's personal check. The banks in turn will receive cash for the stamps from the federal government.

Medical Association Reports to Annual Meeting on Its Plans for Standard Fees

St. Louis, May 15 (AP)—There are 606 reasons for going to a doctor in this country and the American Medical Association today reported to its annual meeting plans to see whether standard fees can be fixed for each one of these "visits." They range from office calls to postfortems.

In an effort to refute charges of standpatism in meeting the public's wishes for reduced costs, the board of trustees reported 450 new medical services have been set up by organized medicine's member societies. They try to reduce the cost of medical care mainly by two methods. One is giving full medical service and dividing a fixed fee among the physicians. The other is to assess members a fixed sum and distribute it to the sick.

Dr Irvin Abell of St. Louis, the retiring president, struck verbally at two U. S. assistant attorney generals for activities outside the indictments in Washington against the AMA as an alleged monopoly.

One, he said, "gave releases to the press accusing the American Medical Association of illegal practices and threatening it with criminal prosecution, thereby promoting an antagonistic mental attitude."

The other, he charged in a public address in Milwaukee, outlined charges to the grand jury in this case, what the department of justice lawyers had learned, and the background of the controversy.

"From time immemorial," said Dr. Abell, "grand jury prosecutions have been presumed to be secret, in order to prevent antagonistic mental attitudes on the part of prospective jurymen. One cannot but wonder if the actions of these two attorneys are in harmony with the ideals of the American Bar Association."

Dr. Rock Sleyster of Wauwatosa, Wis., near Milwaukee, president-elect, charged government with trying to threaten medicine.

"The attention of this body in the past few years," he said, has been largely occupied with threats to the science of medicine by social and governmental agencies, ambitious to revolutionize orderly procedure in the continued development and distribution of medical care.

"Such egencies have promoted an impression that there has been a 'breakdown' in medicine as there has been in agriculture, industry, railroads, building and manufacture. We know this it not true.

"We know that medicine, in fact, is about the only major endeavor which has not failed but on the contrary has improved the quality of its service as well as its distribution during the depression years."

Snite to Lourdes

Youth Who Lives in Special Respirator Will Make Trip to Famous Shrine

Miami, Fla., May 15 (AP)—Fred Snite, Jr., brave and cheerful despite his three year imprisonment in a life-giving respirator, rode northward in a private railroad car toward New York today on the first part of a cherished pilgrimage to the Shrine of Miracles at Lourdes, France.

With his parents, a doctor, five nurses, orderlies and two respirator experts, he will sail on the liner Normandie early tomorrow.

"This is Fred's trip," said his father. "He wanted to make it, so we arranged it. I hope he receives the inner satisfaction he seeks. If there also is a physical benefit, we shall be thankful."

Sullivan Man Awaits Hearing

Leo Manett, alias E. R. Manken, of Bloomingburgh, suspected of being responsible for passing forged checks in widely separated localities in four counties, including Ulster, Orange, Sullivan and Dutchess, is being held at the Ulster county jail to await a hearing before Justice Walter R. Seaman of Highland.

Manett was arrested at his home Saturday afternoon by Trooper Carroll Seymour, following a teletype alarm sent out Thursday by Trooper John Metzger of the B. C. I. for a man who was charged with having passed a worthless check, amounting to $26.34, for purchases valued at $2.25 made at the J. J. Ennist store in Highland. He was turned over to Trooper Metzger and was identified as the man who had passed the check at the Ennist store.

Arraigned before Justice Seaman he demanded a hearing and it was set for 10 o'clock this morning. Before that time, however, Manett had retained Ellsworth Baker of Monticello to represent him, and on agreement with District Attorney Murray the hearing was adjourned to Saturday.

Trooper Metzger said that following Manett's arrest notice had been sent to various police departments and that already many places had been heard from where he is alleged to have operated. Among them is Kingston, where it is charged he passed a check for $36.44 on the L. S. Winne Co. and another on the Elston Sport shop. Other places where checks have been passed, it is stated, are Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Fishkill, Pine Bush, Fallsburgh, Walden and Grahamsville. It is said that at least 15 cases have so far been heard from.

A rubber stamp was used in signing the checks, different firm names being used on different checks, and in addition the name E. R. Manken was signed. Checks ranged in value from $8 to $40.

Manett was formerly a resident of Newburgh and was employed with Samuel Rosoff, giving his occupation as a construction engineer. He had been out of work for the past four months and some time since moved to Bloomingburgh.

Payrolls

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey announced in New York that Joseph Malone (above), Brooklyn auditor of the New York state insurance fund, had stated that a number of the 80 auditors in his department were involved in accepting bribes from employers for underestimating their payrolls. Malone pleaded guilty to illegally accepting fees and bribes. Released on bail, he's shown in the Mahattan office building of his attorney.

Two Hurt When Sedan Overturns

Mrs. Martha Barnett, wife of John C. Barnett of Albany, one of the racers at Woodstock Sunday, and "Bud" Wheeler of Albany, two of six occupants of a sedan Barnett was driving to Albany, received bruises about eight o'clock Sunday night in an accident near the intersection of the Saugerties-Woodstock and High Woods roads.

Trooper Arthur Reilly, who investigated the accident, found that the Barnett sedan, with trailer carrying Barnett's midget racer, swerved to avoid hitting a car of Lewis Hymes of 109 Albany avenue, which was coming out of the High Woods road. Barnett's car was badly damaged when it overturned. The Hymes car also was damaged when a fender was struck by the trailer.

Commodities Firm During Last Week

The Stock Exchange continued to mark time Saturday with transactions of 159,140, second smallest total of the year to date. Slight gains for the day were shown, as measured in the Dow-Jones averages. Industrials advanced 0.24 point, to 132.40; rails were ahead 0.19 point, to 27.32 and utilities showed a gain of 0.06 point, to 23. 23. Attendance was light and there was a general lack of interest, which, unless something happens to break the monotony seems likely to continue for the present. Important selling is not looked for unless business declines more than is expected, but, on the other hand, the outlook is not such as would encourage buying. Stocks moved within a narrow range last week and while all averages showed slight gains they were not of importance.

Commodities generally were firm the past week, outstanding feature being the rise of more than four cents a bushel in May wheat.

Perhaps the most important event of the week was the settlement of the coal strike, on a basis which cannot help but be pleasing to John L. Lewis, but has possible results not so pleasing to that portion of the population which does not see the principle of the "closed shop" and the old American idea of freedom of action and opportunity as being exactly synonymous.

Steel production declined still further, carloadings were off and there was a decline in public building contracts. On the other hand output of motor cars turned upward, general railroad traffic outside of coal remained above last year and woolen mills were more than seasonally busy. On the whole the distribution of consumers goods was seen as being fairly well maintained.

One writer notes that "business indices have been slipping since the start of the year." He refers to various excuses for declines, such as the European situation, the coal strike, bad weather and even the fact that Mother's Day came a week late this year and says, "All these explanations may be valid enough, but the fact remains that business has been slipping." As to further possible government aid in the way of tax relief it is observed that "the old trouble of spending beyond income remains to refute any claim that genuine and lasting tax relief is in sight."

Carnegie-Illinois, chief subsidiary of U. S. Steel, has announced that current prices will be maintained for deliveries during the third quarter. The move is seen as an attempt to prevent a general decline in prices and a repetition of last fall's price war which had a bad effect on earnings of steel companies. There have been reports recently that in the Detroit area there have been price reductions.

A group of farm organizations are objecting to the Norton amendment to the Wage and Hour Act which extends the act to cover a large number of agricultural workers not at present affected. Among signers of a letter opposing the Norton bill were the American Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange, National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation and others. It is objected that the bill would "place agriculture in a strait-jacket and leave it helpless."

New York, May 15 (AP).—The stock market took on a little rallying color today and leading issues edged up fractions to a point or so.

Volume dwindled after a brief active flurry in the forenoon. Transfers for the five hours were at the rate of approximately 400,000 shares. Prices chipped down from the best near the final hour.

Helping sentiment, brokers said, was the relatively peace-like speech of Mussolini and hopes today's White House tax conference would evolve a program that would bring at least a few of the revisions desired by industry.

Prominent shares on the early forward move were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, Southern Railway, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of N. J., and Kroger Grocery.

Foreign markets did better. Bonds were slightly mixed.

Wiltwyck Ice Co. Sues Joe Palumbo

An action for goods sold and delivered was taken up at the opening of court this morning at 11 o'clock before Justice Foster. A jury was selected and counsel opened the case when a recess was taken in order that the matter might be discussed between counsel and the court.

Wiltwyck Ice and Coal Company, Inc., of Kingston brings an action against Joe Palumbo, doing business as Newburgh Coal and Ice Service, to recover $2,000.96 for coal and ice which plaintiff alleges it sold to Mr. Palumbo over a period from 1933 to 1937. Palumbo claims he had paid a majority of the bill and he counterclaims for some $400 which he claims he has loaned to the plaintiffs.

There is a dispute as to the amount of merchandise delivered. Counsel for the defendant now alleges that at times 60 cakes of ice was billed and the defendant received but 40. This happened many times, it is claimed. The conference between court and counsel came about over this matter when plaintiff offered a stipulation between plaintiff and the former counsel for, the defendant in which the defendant admits that he received the merchandise billed. Daniel Becker, counsel for the defendant, has withdrawn and Mr. Levinson of Newburgh now appears. Mr. Levinson disputes the former stipulation. The admission of receipt of the merchandise was made in 1937.

Defendant's counsel in opening stated that the action was brought in court to "compel the defendant to continue to do business with the plaintiff" and that for a time the defendant did continue to do business with the plaintiff after the suit was brought. Then Palumbo decided to discontinue business with the plaintiffs and the suit was moved for trial.

Mr. Levinson contends that the stipulation in which it is admitted all of the merchandise charged up to Palumbo was received, was not authorized by the defendant and that Palumbo does not understand or read English well and did not understand the contents of the stipulation when he signed it and admitted the merchandise charged for had been received by him. He now claims many shipments of ice were short.

Cashin & Ewig appear for the plaintiff and Mr. Levinson for the defendant.

Fourth Dimension Once An Aid to Spiritualists

The term, fourth dimension, is explained in Webster by saying that physical space is sometimes regarded, as in the theory of relativity, as consisting of the ordinary three-spatial dimensions, plus a fourth dimension, time, and is then known as a "space-time continuum. In this continuum, each point, represented by four co-ordinates, records an event or happening; a line, the interval, life, or history of the event; and an area, the history of a series of events. Explanations of the fourth dimension may be found in such works as "Tertium Organum" by Ouspensky, who says, "Extension in time is extension into unknown space and therefore time is the fourth dimension of space"; also in "The Fourth Dimension Simply Explained," by Manning, this being a collection of essays submitted in a Scientific American prize competition. Phin's "The Seven Follies of Science" lists the fourth dimension among paradoxes, illusions, and marvels. This writer says that the first hint of its existence was a purely mathematical one but that it was seized upon by a certain branch of the transcendentalists, closely allied to the spiritualists, and was exploited by them as a possible explanation of some curious and mysterious phenomena and feats exhibited by certain Indian and European devotees.

BOB TAYLOR'S AFTER ELOPMENT

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck of the films, obviously happy in their new marital state, return to Hollywood after a surprise late night wedding at San Diego, Cal. But the honeymoon will be postponed because Taylor is making a film with Hedy Lamarr.

Appellate Group Upholds Ruling

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has just handed down a decision affirming unanimously an appeal from an order of the Albany special term of the Supreme Court denying the motion of Patrick J. Brearton and Nathan Ross, as co-trustees of the Quandt Brewing Company, Inc., against James Morgan, to compel the comptroller of the state to pay to the sheriff of Albany county the sum of $400 alleged to be the property of Mr. Morgan.

Attorney Arthur B. Ewig of the firm of Cashin & Ewig of this city, argued the appeal for Mr. Morgan.

The opinion of the higher court is written by Judge C. J. Heffernan and outlines the facts in the proceedings to the effect that in October, 1937, the Quandt Brewing Company recovered a judgment against Morgan in the Supreme Court for $589.92, and that the judgment was unsatisfied.

In June, 1938, Messrs. Brearton and Ross were appointed co-trustees of the brewing company under the provisions of the national bankruptcy act.

On August 30, 1938, Mr. Morgan filed an application for a restaurant liquor license for the year beginning October 1, 1938 and ending September 30, 1939 with the State Liquor Authority and deposited the required fee of $400. This amount was later turned over to the state comptroller according to the provisions of the ABC law and were placed in the fund derived from the proceeds of the taxes on liquor, wine and beer.

On October 1, 1938, Mr. Morgan was issued a license, and since its issuance has made no attempt to surrender it or to obtain a refund.

Meanwhile and on September 17, 1938, the co-trustees served a subpoena upon the comptroller requiring his attendance for examination as third party before a special term of supreme court "on the theory that the comptroller has in his possession money belonging to respondent, the judgment debtor (Morgan). Appellants asserted that the fee of $400 which Morgan had deposited in order to secure his license was his property."

Later at a special term of the Supreme Court in Albany the motion of the co-trustees was denied, and the present appeal was taken from that decision.

Judge Heffernan in his opinion writes "The fee which respondent deposited in connection with his application for a license immediately became the property of the state. Title thereto was no longer in respondent."

Again in the written opinion Judge Heffernan writes "if appellants' contentions were to prevail then we would have the anomolous situation of the judgment debtor in possession of a liquor license and his creditors enriched by a return of the fee which he paid therefor."

"The order appealed from should be affirmed with $10 costs and disbursements."

When experience talks, it is well to listen. There will be at least a few pointers to be gained.

Sullivan Man Awaits Hearing

Leo Manett, alias E. R. Manken, of Bloomingburgh, suspected of being responsible for passing forged checks in widely separated localities in four counties, including Ulster, Orange, Sullivan and Dutchess, is being held at the Ulster county jail to await a hearing before Justice Walter R. Seaman of Highland.

Manett was arrested at his home Saturday afternoon by Trooper Carroll Seymour, following a teletype alarm sent out Thursday by Trooper John Metzger of the B. C. I. for a man who was charged with having passed a worthless check, amounting to $26.34, for purchases valued at $2.25 made at the J. J. Ennist store in Highland. He was turned over to Trooper Metzger and was identified as the man who had passed the check at the Ennist store.

Arraigned before Justice Seaman he demanded a hearing and it was set for 10 o'clock this morning. Before that time, however, Manett had retained Ellsworth Baker of Monticello to represent him, and on agreement with District Attorney Murray the hearing was adjourned to Saturday.

Trooper Metzger said that following Manett's arrest notice had been sent to various police departments and that already many places had been heard from where he is alleged to have operated. Among them is Kingston, where it is charged he passed a check for $36.44 on the L. S. Winne Co. and another on the Elston Sport shop. Other places where checks have been passed, it is stated, are Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Fishkill, Pine Bush, Fallsburgh, Walden and Grahamsville. It is said that at least 15 cases have so far been heard from.

A rubber stamp was used in signing the checks, different firm names being used on different checks, and in addition the name E. R. Manken was signed. Checks ranged in value from $8 to $40.

Manett was formerly a resident of Newburgh and was employed with Samuel Rosoff, giving his occupation as a construction engineer. He had been out of work for the past four months and some time since moved to Bloomingburgh.

Payrolls

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey announced in New York that Joseph Malone (above), Brooklyn auditor of the New York state insurance fund, had stated that a number of the 80 auditors in his department were involved in accepting bribes from employers for underestimating their payrolls. Malone pleaded guilty to illegally accepting fees and bribes. Released on bail, he's shown in the Manhattan office building of his attorney.

Two Hurt When Sedan Overturns

Mrs. Martha Barnett, wife of John C. Barnett of Albany, one of the racers at Woodstock Sunday, and "Bud" Wheeler of Albany, two of six occupants of a sedan Barnett was driving to Albany, received bruises about eight o'clock Sunday night in an accident near the intersection of the Saugerties-Woodstock and High Woods roads.

Trooper Arthur Reilly, who investigated the accident, found that the Barnett sedan, with trailer carrying Barnett's midget racer, swerved to avoid hitting a car of Lewis Hymes of 109 Albany avenue, which was coming out of the High Woods road. Barnett's car was badly damaged when it overturned. The Hymes car also was damaged when a fender was struck by the trailer.

Commodities Firm During Last Week

The Stock Exchange continued to mark time Saturday with transactions of 159,140, second smallest total of the year to date. Slight gains for the day were shown, as measured in the Dow-Jones averages. Industrials advanced 0.24 point, to 132.40; rails were ahead 0.19 point, to 27.32 and utilities showed a gain of 0.06 point, to 23.23. Attendance was light and there was a general lack of interest, which, unless something happens to break the monotony seems likely to continue for the present. Important selling is not looked for unless business declines more than is expected, but, on the other hand, the outlook is not such as would encourage buying. Stocks moved within a narrow range last week and while all averages showed slight gains they were not of importance.

Commodities generally were firm the past week, outstanding feature being the rise of more than four cents a bushel in May wheat.

Perhaps the most important event of the week was the settlement of the coal strike, on a basis which cannot help but be pleasing to John L. Lewis, but has possible results not so pleasing to that portion of the population which does not see the principle of the "closed shop" and the old American idea of freedom of action and opportunity as being exactly synonymous.

Steel production declined still further, carloadings were off and there was a decline in public building contracts. On the other hand output of motor cars turned upward, general railroad traffic outside of coal remained above last year and woolen mills were more than seasonally busy. On the whole the distribution of consumers goods was seen as being fairly well maintained.

One writer notes that "business indices have been slipping since the start of the year." He refers to various excuses for declines, such as the European situation, the coal strike, bad weather and even the fact that Mother's Day came a week late this year and says, "All these explanations may be valid enough, but the fact remains that business has been slipping." As to further possible government aid in the way of tax relief it is observed that "the old trouble of spending beyond income remains to refute any claim that genuine and lasting tax relief is in sight."

Carnegie-Illinois, chief subsidiary of U. S. Steel, has announced that current prices will be maintained for deliveries during the third quarter. The move is seen as an attempt to prevent a general decline in prices and a repetition of last fall's price war which had a bad effect on earnings of steel companies. There have been reports recently that in the Detroit area there have been price reductions.

A group of farm organizations are objecting to the Norton amendment to the Wage and Hour Act which extends the act to cover a large number of agricultural workers not at present affected. Among signers of a letter opposing the Norton bill were the American Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange, National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation and others. It is objected that the bill would "place agriculture in a strait-jacket and leave it helpless."

Concert Money Lost

Mrs. Ethel Wood of Washington avenue, in charge of the Social Service Bureau in the city hall, while shopping in the uptown business district on Saturday at noon lost a subscription envelope for the Community Concerts. The envelope, which bore her name and address, contained a check and $9 in currency. The finder of the envelope can get in touch with her by telephone at the Social Service Bureau office in the city hall.

New York, May 15 (AP)—The stock market took on a little rallying color today and leading issues edged up fractions to a point or so.

Volume dwindled after a brief active flurry in the forenoon. Transfers for the five hours were at the rate of approximately 400,000 shares. Prices chipped down from the best near the final hour.

Helping sentiment, brokers said, was the relatively peace-like speech of Mussolini and hopes today's White House tax conference would evolve a program that would bring at least a few of the revisions desired by industry.

Prominent shares on the early forward move were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, Southern Railway, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of N. J., and Kroger Grocery.

Foreign markets did better. Bonds were slightly mixed.

Wiltwyck Ice Co. Sues Joe Palumbo

An action for goods sold and delivered was taken up at the opening of court this morning at 11 o'clock before Justice Foster. A jury was selected and counsel opened the case when a recess was taken in order that the matter might be discussed between counsel and the court.

Wiltwyck Ice and Coal Company, Inc., of Kingston brings an action against Joe Palumbo, doing business as Newburgh Coal and Ice Service, to recover $2,000.96 for coal and ice which plaintiff alleges it sold to Mr. Palumbo over a period from 1933 to 1937. Palumbo claims he had paid a majority of the bill and he counterclaims for some $400 which he claims he has loaned to the plaintiffs.

There is a dispute as to the amount of merchandise delivered. Counsel for the defendant now alleges that at times 60 cakes of ice was billed and the defendant received but 40. This happened many times, it is claimed. The conference between court and counsel came about over this matter when plaintiff offered a stipulation between plaintiff and the former counsel for, the defendant in which the defendant admits that he received the merchandise billed. Daniel Becker, counsel for the defendant, has withdrawn and Mr. Levinson of Newburgh now appears. Mr. Levinson disputes the former stipulation. The admission of receipt of the merchandise was made in 1937.

Defendant's counsel in opening stated that the action was brought in court to "compel the defendant to continue to do business with the plaintiff" and that for a time the defendant did continue to do business with the plaintiff after the suit was brought. Then Palumbo decided to discontinue business with the plaintiffs and the suit was moved for trial.

Mr. Levinson contends that the stipulation in which it is admitted all of the merchandise charged up to Palumbo was received, was not authorized by the defendant and that Palumbo does not understand or read English well and did not understand the contents of the stipulation when he signed it and admitted the merchandise charged for had been received by him. He now claims many shipments of ice were short.

Cashin & Ewig appear for the plaintiff and Mr. Levinson for the defendant.

Fourth Dimension Once An Aid to Spiritualists

The term, fourth dimension, is explained in Webster by saying that physical space is sometimes regarded, as in the theory of relativity, as consisting of the ordinary three-spatial dimensions, plus a fourth dimension, time, and is then known as a "space-time continuum. In this continuum, each point, represented by four co-ordinates, records an event or happening; a line, the interval, life, or history of the event; and an area, the history of a series of events. Explanations of the fourth dimension may be found in such works as "Tertium Organum" by Ouspensky, who says, "Extension in time is extension into unknown space and therefore time is the fourth dimension of space"; also in "The Fourth Dimension Simply Explained," by Manning, this being a collection of essays submitted in a Scientific American prize competition. Phin's "The Seven Follies of Science" lists the fourth dimension among paradoxes, illusions, and marvels. This writer says that the first hint of its existence was a purely mathematical one but that it was seized upon by a certain branch of the transcendentalists, closely allied to the spiritualists, and was exploited by them as a possible explanation of some curious and mysterious phenomena and feats exhibited by certain Indian and European devotees.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 15, 1939.

TOO MUCH MUSIC

The greatest American evil of the present day is probably music. Well, not music exactly, but what goes by that name—let us say musical noise. Westbrook Pegler paid his respects to it in a recent column. He was glad to get back to New York, after idling around several outlying states for a couple of weeks. In the metropolis it seems easier to escape, he says, from "the radio or the restaurant music machines which maintain a hideous racket from dawn until the lights are turned out at night." He finds that nuisance widespread.

"Even in the hotels," he continues, "guests turn on the radio real loud, and nobody seems to even notice three or four of them blaring away on different stations on one floor, and the music which is discoursed by the grill room bands in the little local hot spots is the same ghastly mixture of incoherent shrieks and whinnies that is heard in New York, but louder."

Many people with sensitive ears have noticed the same thing. It wouldn't be so bad if hotels and other places of entertainment subject to this abuse would have some music-master whose duty it was to soften the din and see that not more than one radio program was blaring away at one time. The theory of musical entertainment is probably what it always has been—to "soothe the savage breast," not to drive normal people out of their minds.

BIRD ALLIES

Consider among the farmer's troubles the 300,000 types of insects which feed on farm crops and other forms of plant life. They constitute a tremendous menace to agriculture. If human beings had to fight them unaided, the insects would soon wreck us all. At least, that is the natural conclusion, in view of our lack of success so far in stopping some of the best-known pests.

Fortunately for us, we do not have to fight this war alone. There are 13,000 different kinds of birds in the United States, and most of them feed on the pestiferous insects, keeping the numbers down and giving man a chance to plant and harvest his necessary crops.

It has been estimated that insectivorous birds perform a seven-million-dollar service along this line to the farmers of Pennsylvania alone. No doubt if estimates were made elsewhere similar benefits would be found in all the 48 states.

SLAVERY IN AUSTRIA

One of the most recent developments affecting Jews in Austria is the canvas of Jewish homes by members of the Nazi Welfare organization. These visitors list the names of all male Jews more than 18 years old. This is done, it is explained in Vienna, for convenience in "conscripting the male Jews in case they are needed for work in labor camps." Such lists seem to have been prepared already throughout nearly all Germany.

It is well known that Hitler has been running short of manpower, not as a result of natural industrial development but on account of the concentration of labor on war industries. The Jews have borne their normal part in such armament. This present listing seems to indicate a special, compulsory contribution of labor on the part of a racial minority largely barred by discriminatory laws from normal occupations. If so, it means virtual slavery for most able-bodied Jews, on menial labor, as long as they remain in Germany.

POPULAR WEATHER REPORTS

At the end of the first month of operation of its new weather service the New York Telephone Company announced that it would treble the facilities. The public had shown its great interest in the forecasts by making 766,000 calls. The lowest number of inquiries was 7,500 in one day, the highest 58,000. Hereafter the company will be able to handle 100,000 calls a day.

In addition to the latest official forecasts the telephone weather bureau will also give hourly temperature and humidity readings during the summer. This will enable New Yorkers, or fair visitors from other states, to know just why they feel so good, or so uncomfortable, as the case may be, on any given day.

Apparently the weather will always be a matter of absorbing interest to human beings. There is more scientific measuring of it today than ever before, and information is available to all who can read newspapers or use a telephone. But it is still true that nobody does much of anything about the weather itself. We can prepare for it in various ways, but we can't prevent a thunder storm, a blizzard, or a drouth when it's on the weather program.

In this country there is no compulsory cheering and nobody is thrown in jail for giving a Bronx cheer.

Sure, congressmen are for economy—when the money is to be spent outside of their districts.

TREATMENT OF THE ANXIETY PATIENT

A few weeks ago when a patient consulted a physician about his nerves—sleeplessness, lack of appetite, anxiety—and the physician could find no organic trouble, he referred him to a "nerve specialist" because there might be something wrong with the patient's nerves which the general practitioner did not understand. Today, when the physician, after making a thorough examination, can find no organic trouble responsible for the symptoms, he does not refer him to the nerve specialist or psychiatrist but gives the necessary treatment himself.

In speaking of some of these nervous states—anxiety and depression—Dr. Franklin G. Ebaugh, Denver, in Southwestern Medicine, says that in the anxiety state, the patient often complains of being cold and unable to keep warm. He is tense, restless, uneasy, apprehensive, with cold, clammy hands and feet and dry mouth. There is a rapid pulse and high blood pressure, which are down to normal when the patient is asleep.

"In treating a patient with the anxiety complex it is important to avoid the pitfalls of telling him that he should stop worrying or that nothing is wrong with him, since he is unable to stop thinking about his trouble and knows quite definitely that something is wrong." The physician must spend an hour or more letting the patient tell his story about his family, business, and social life. As there is no organic trouble present and the patient now has confidence in the physician because he has shared his story with him, the physician is often able to give the needed help or advice. This means that the physician, while not exactly acting in the capacity of a priest, minister, or lawyer, nevertheless, with the whole background of the patient now known to him, can advise a holiday for the patient or a member of his family, a change of scene, perhaps a change of occupation, perhaps more rest and a gentle laxative.

The big point is that the physician now recognizes that the nervous or anxious patient needs to be given time to tell his story, if he is to obtain any real help.

Neurosis

Do you have pains or symptoms the cause of which is not revealed by medical tests? Do you sometimes feel inclined to do things you know to be senseless? Send for Dr. Barton's interesting booklet entitled 'Neurosis' (No. 103) which explains how the 'cure' of ailments is accomplished where none apparently exist. Send your request to The Bell Library, 247 W. 43rd street, New York, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to cover cost of handling and mention the name of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Amarillo, Tex., (AP).—A race by automobile with an eagle across the Texas plains is the latest sport for Panhandle ranchers. The hunters drive across the prairie parallel with small canyons where eagles nest. When one of the big birds is flushed the driver attempts to put the car under him to give his companion, armed with a rifle, a shot. A number of birds have been killed. The largest had a wing spread of eight feet. Most of them are Mexican eagles, although there are a few bald ones.

Modena, (AP).—A brickmason here, named Goldoni, believes in direct action on "bad" debt cases. After years of futile efforts to collect 60,000 lire he claimed were still owing him for building a suburban church tower, he went in the night with two helpers and walled in the tower doorway. The sexton's failure to call the faithful to prayers the following morning brought a gesticulating crowd, a disgusted parish priest and the law. Goldoni is defending his action in the local assizes.

Moscow, (AP).—A two-hulled water-glider equipped to carry 150 passengers at a speed of more than 40 miles an hour has been built here for Black Sea service between the southern health resorts of Sochi and Sukhumi.

The two hulls of the craft, each about 75 feet long, are connected by a wide, bridge-like structure with many windows for the convenience of sight-seeing passengers.

Indianapolis, Ind., (AP).—Judge John R. McNelis gave Cecil Shock a novel way to settle the speeding charge against him. "This is my first offense and I haven't very much money," Shock told the judge. "Then I'll let you set your own fine," said Judge McNelis. "A dollar and costs and costs suspended," Shock ruled. The judge agreed.

UNDERGROUND RUMBLINGS

They're In The Royal Party

By The AP Feature Service

Though it's taking 1,200-passenger liner and two men o'war to properly ferry the world's leading monarchs to North America, King George and Queen Elizabeth are leaving their army of servants behind.

There are only 30 persons in the royal suite. Eight personal servants are assigned to Their Majesties. The ten titled or distinguished aides, with one servant each, complete the party.

It'll be "every man to his post" on this royal junket, too. This royal retinue is the shock absorber between the monarchs and a sometimes crushing public. They earn their passage.

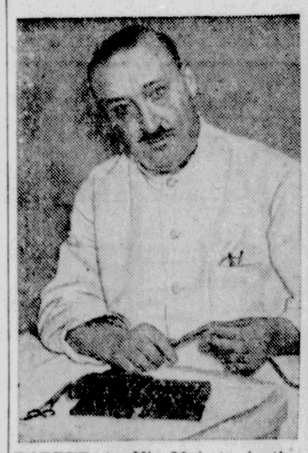

LADY-IN-WAITING Nunburnholme, a blue-blooded baroness, is one of the Queen's companions. She was a bridesmaid at Their Majesties' wedding.

Black-haired Alan Lascelles (the king calls him "Tommy"), as acting private secretary to the king, probably is the head man of the traveling royal household. He is 51, once knocked about the world with the Prince of Wales; lived in Canada four years. He scouted the route of the royal tour earlier this year.

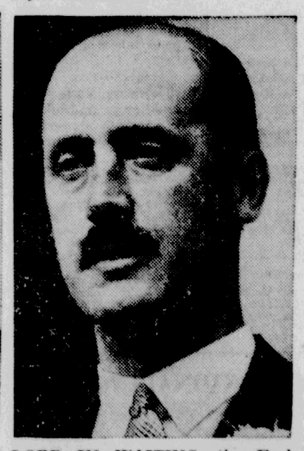

Here he is with some of the others who'll try to make Their Majesties' trip as comfortable and safe as possible:

RIGHT-HAND MAN Lascelles is the coach on Yankee customs and manners, also takes care of messages, arrangements, audiences, royal statements.

BARBER to His Majesty is the assignment of Paul E. Tasse of Ottawa, Canada, who'll take his knives aboard the royal train just for the American tour.

LORD-IN-WAITING, the Earl of Eldon, member of the royal court. He's 40, war veteran, owns 12,000 acres. He's the king's traveling companion.

GUARD of Their Majesties' safety, Albert Canning, of Scotland Yard, has hand-picked his men to assist local authorities during the royal appearances.

LORD CHAMBERLAIN to the Queen, the Earl of Airlie, is the social master of ceremonies. He's a wealthy, sports-loving Scotsman, 45; wounded in World War.

SECRETARY to the king, Capt. Michael Adeane (also an enquery) helps with correspondence, carries keys, supplies the king with reviews of news.

EQUERRY to the King, the Hon. Piers Legh, is a world-traveler and a war veteran; he married an American. He'll be an advisor and companion.

Temporary National Economic Committee Is Now in a Position to Reveal Some Striking Facts

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 15.—For several months now the temporary national economic committee, sometimes called the anti-monopoly committee, has been nibbling away at some of the larger problems of business operation, but only this week is the committee getting down to fundamentals. It is about to penetrate the complicated but highly important question of capital flow in America.

Up to now, the committee has had a somewhat legalistic approach, keeping the idea of concentration of economic power within rather narrow areas of business practice, such as grow out of patent monopoly or price-fixing. This angle might be pursued for years without revealing much more than the existence of two opposite schools, which believe in amended anti-trust laws and aggressive competition, on the one hand, and the establishment of government cartels or regulation of price levels on the other.

This week, however, the committee in effect concedes that all elements of competition, fair and unfair, and all characteristics of monopoly, quasi-legal or unlawful, are directly related to the method by which capital is accumulated and distributed.

Something basically different from anything which used to happen before 1930 has come into the picture of capital flow. The old methods of floating issues of common stock to make capital available to large enterprise, and even, to a large extent, the old ways of floating large bond issues, have been modified, if not reduced to a relatively small operation.

Today, big business gets its capital from its own surpluses and reserves or sells privately a large issue of securities to an insurance company, and the days of numerous so-called public issues have passed into history.

The investment banking machinery lies idle, and, so far as small business is concerned, it never had any means of getting capital except by the hard way of finding individual capitalists here or there, or occasionally, and very occasionally, by persuading local banks to make three to five-year capital loans.

The reasons why investment banking machinery is idle have never been scientifically penetrated by a public inquiry. There will be some bankers in New York, for instance, who will insist that no "confidence" prevails and hence large issues cannot be offered to investors except now and then in a few gilt-edge cases. Other financial men will say that the rigid terms of the securities and exchange act are at bottom responsible and that corporations fear to take the risks of the racketeering lawsuits that might follow if their directors have to take personal responsibility for signing the prospectuses on which loans can be issued.

Certainly, the Securities and Exchange Commission itself, which is conducting the inquiry before the temporary national economic committee, is not inclined to put itself or the present law on trial on these points, so the main purpose of the commission's counsel doubtless will be to get at the facts of capital operation without discussing remedies at this time.

The study of capital flow is not a sudden affair. Peter Nehemikis, Jr., one of the able counsel of the SEC's staff, who is director of investment studies, has been working for several months now to get an objective survey made on what is actually happening to American capital in respect to large and small business.

Witnesses from Wall Street investment banking houses will describe past and present practices with particular reference to the custom that has grown among big corporations of avoiding the investment bankers altogether by having a direct private deal between a big bank or insurance company and the corporation in question, a practice that is allowable under present law.

If the private deals mean that corporations save money by getting their issues cheaper, there can be no objection, because this is merely applying the rules of competition to the capital market. But, if it turns out that many of the corporations which do not have an opportunity to get the securities of their particular types of business into insurance company portfolios are unable to have issues floated at all, the inquiry might well examine the underlying causes.

It may be that investment banking machinery itself needs an overhauling and that some changes in the laws will be helpful, or that the investment trust or group idea of selling securities of many smaller companies through a single finance institution or intermediate credit corporation will be suggested as a way of meeting the need for a better capital flow.

Clearly the evidence will show bulging bank reserves, meagre investment portfolios except for government bonds, and the great need of transforming idle money into workable capital issues. The view that, if some other administration came into power at Washington or if taxes were reduced or if the budget were balanced or if the Wagner law were changed, all the problems of America would solve themselves overnight is widely held among business men, but this presupposes the absence of any fundamental difficulties with the American economic system as a consequence of world conditions or the maladjustments that produced 10,000,000 unemployed before the present administration came into power. The temporary national economic committee is in a position to reveal some striking facts, and that's why the phase of its investigation just beginning may prove of extraordinary significance.

Wars of the Roses

The Wars of the Roses were a series of civil wars in England between the rival houses of York and Lancaster in the latter half of the Fifteenth century. They were so named because the badge of Lancaster was a red rose and that of York was a white rose. The House of Lancaster had obtained the throne of England in 1399. When Henry V died, he left as heir a child nine months old who proved both physically and mentally unfit. Under these circumstances Richard, duke of York, claimed the throne. The wars ended with the defeat and death of Richard III at Bosworth, August 22, 1485, and the succession of Henry VII, representing the house of Lancaster, whose marriage with a Yorkish princess, united the conflicting interests.

Marine Hospitals

The marine hospitals of the United States public health service are supported by appropriations made by congress for the "pay of personnel and maintenance of hospitals of the United States." From 1798 until 1886 they were maintained by a tax of 20 cents per month which was collected by the collector of customs from each sailor on American merchant marine ships. From 1886 to 1906 a special tonnage tax provided their maintenance. Since 1906 the hospitals have been maintained by direct appropriations made by congress.

About the Panama Canal

The canal works and other improvements in the Canal Zone are the property of the United States government. In a strictly technical sense, the United States did not acquire title to any territory in Panama by the Isthmian treaty of 1903. It obtained a perpetual right of occupation, use and control over the land within the zone. For this privilege it paid $10,000,000 outright, and pays a rental of $250,000 annually during the life of the treaty.

Forty per cent of the students at Niagara university at Niagara Falls, N. Y., do not smoke, according to a survey by the business statistics class under the guidance of Bernard P. Guerin, instructor in the school of business. The average cigarette smoker consumes about half a pack a day, according to the survey. Only seven students consumed more than a pack a day.

ROYAL COUPLE GOOD SAILORS

Unaffected by heavy weather and a plunging ship, King George VI takes pictures from the deck of the Canada-bound Empress of Australia, while Queen Elizabeth looks on. This picture was transferred to the battle-cruiser Repulse at sea and taken back to London, to be transmitted to New York by Western Union cable.

KING AND QUEEN TRY LIFE BELTS

Royalty was no exception when life belt drill was held for all aboard the Empress of Australia while the royal shop continued its ice-delayed journey to Quebec. Here a ship's officer demonstrates use of a life belt to the King and Queen of England, while helping Her Majesty to try one on. This photo was thrown overboard from the Empress of Australia in a cask, far out in the Atlantic, picked up by the battle-cruiser Repulse, taken to London and then cabled to New York.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Fair-Minded

New York—Even Grover Whalen looked surprised when Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco volunteered that New York had the world's No. 1 fair in the "World of Tomorrow."

Replying yesterday to an official welcome at San Francisco Day ceremonies, Mayor Rossi said:

"You have a fair second to none—and we have a fair second only to yours."

He added the country was "big enough for two fairs."

Priceless Gift

Seattle—Earl Lawrence, 17, had his picture taken to give to his mother on Mother's Day.

Mrs. Lawrence got the picture, but not from Earl. Her husband gave it to her a few hours after the boy was killed in an auto accident.

Piscatorial Grandma

Bloomington, Ill.—Instead of staying home for her 90th birthday party, Mrs. Fannie Chaney Miller went fishing today.

False Alarm

Hartington, Neb.—A screeching fire whistle brought the whole town to see the fire—but they couldn't find it.

Investigation finally disclosed a WPA paving worker had short-circuited the whistle when he cut an underground cable with a spade.

HEAVY GOING ON ROYAL VOYAGE

This photo made from the British battle-cruiser Repulse, which escorted the royal liner part way on her stormy voyage to Canada, shows the Empress of Australia, with the King and Queen of England aboard, plowing through heavy seas in mid-Atlantic. A wave is breaking against the bow of the Repulse. The Empress encountered a 60-mile gale, fogs and ice, all of which delayed her scheduled arrival in Quebec by one day. The Repulse took this photo back to London, and it was transmitted to New York by Western Union cable.

QUEBEC PREPARES FOR ROYAL VISIT

As part of the ceremonies in preparation for the delayed visit of their King and Queen, provincial police, guards and sailors attend an open air mass on the lawn of Parliament building in Quebec. Just after this service, Canada heard that the scheduled arival of the royal party, already postponed from May 15 to 16, has once more been set back, this time until May 17, due to delays encountered by the S. S. Empress of Australia in her cautious crossing of the fog, ice and storm-bound north Atlantic.

Elks Will Hold Vaudeville Show

Monday evening, May 29, Kingston lodge, B. P. O. Elks, will present a vaudeville show for both men and women at the club house, followed by a dance.

The acts secured are comparable to those presented at the various Kingston balls. Mr. Brilliant, who has visited Kingston before, will serve as master of ceremonies and carry on in his usual fashion as a humorist and raconteur. Several songsters, dancers, a magician, a comedy team and a yodeler and imitator will also be featured on the program. Bert Lowe's Melodians will furnish the music for dancing.

This entertainment and dance is under the direction of the Elks' house committee, appointed by Exalted Ruler William H. Rothery. This committee consists of George D. Logan, chairman; Dr. Joseph H. Rosenberg, Charles A. Ryan, Jack Feye and Ike Trowbridge.

A pinch of salt in egg whites that are to be beaten helps to stiffen the whites and makes them beat faster and to a slightly greater volume; also they may become less watery on standing.

SEEING IS BELIEVING!

Now... circus folks, too, are comparing cigarettes this strikingly convincing way...

"JUST watch 'em burn," is the advice smart smokers are giving on cigarettes these days. At the right, aerial ace Everett White of the Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey circus proves that one leading cigarette burns slower than other brands. The famous star of the high trapeze, Ed Rooney, observes that the winning brand is C-A-M-E-L! Camel's big advantage is in its costlier tobaccos, expertly blended in a cigarette made to burn slowly, completely!

Recently, a group of scientists made this interesting laboratory test on a bigger scale. 16 of the largest-selling cigarette brands were tested impartially. CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME FOR THE OTHER BRANDS. (Camels were remarkably consistent. Cigarettes of some brands smoked twice as fast as others right from the same pack.) IN THE SAME TEST, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME FOR ALL THE OTHER BRANDS.

Camel is the cigarette of costlier tobaccos... always slow-burning, cool, mild, with a delightful taste!

Everyone watches Everett White, the daring aerialist (center), intently, as Camels win in his cigarette test. He remarks: "Camel smokers know Camels smoke COOLER and MILDER. And any smoker can see one reason why! Look how much slower that Camel burns! And, say, notice how the Camel ash stays on!"

SMOKING IS BELIEVING!

IF you feel that life owes you a little more fun, try a cigarette made with costlier tobaccos...a Camel! See how Camel's delightful fragrance and taste can brighten you up. Camels are amazingly mild. Cool... easy on your throat... really a matchless blend.

Camels have more tobacco by weight than the average of the 15 other brands tested. Besides, Camels burn slower than any of those other brands. And by burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands, Camels give you the equivalent of 5 extra smokes per pack!

Camels give you even more for your money when you count in Camel's finer, more expensive tobaccos. Buy shrewdly! Buy Camels... America's first choice for a luxury smoke every smoker can afford!

Camel's slower burning (compared to the average time of the 15 other brands tested) gives you the equivalent of 5 extra smokes per pack! You economize while enjoying smoking pleasure at its best!

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters

Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.

Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seaclif.

Yesterday: Lyn is crushed by the appearance of the roadside stand, and Bob's part in it. Thorn's fiancée, Nola, is coming for a visit.

Chapter 13

Nola

JOCELYN and Thorndyke met Nola Cranston at the Santa Barbara airport. It took them a few minutes to push through the surrounding circle of newspaper reporters and cameramen, for Nola Cranston was heiress to the Cranston shoe factory millions and everything she did was news.

As the two Russells looked on she posed graciously on the steps of the airliner, a tall, elegant figure in tailored black, her shoulders draped with silver fox skins. From her hand-made shoes to her Paris turban she registered assurance and sophistication. She was not beautiful; rather, unusual. "Striking" would fit her better than any other adjective. Her long hair, worn in a sleek, heavy knot on her neck, was bleached to the color of white-gold; her eyes, elongated and wisely mysterious, were very black; her nose was sharp and thin, its aquiline arrogance contradicted by a wide, generous mouth which parted often to show perfect rows of white teeth.

Spying Thorn and Jocelyn, she beckoned to them with a slim scarlet-tipped hand which held a cigarette in a long ivory holder. "Come here, darlings!" she commanded. "I want you both in my pictures."

Thorndyke, smug and pompous and proudly possessive, put his arm about Nola's waist and kissed her. His manner told the audience: "This woman is my future wife. Aren't we a rare and handsome pair?"

Later, with Nola wedged between them in the front seat of the cream-colored sedan, they all tried talking at once and had to subside, hopelessly, into laughter.

"Boston is impossible this time of year," Nola finally managed. "Melting snow, drizzling rain, and unbearably stuffy people. I made up my mind on the way out here that I'm not going back. Here I am and here I am going to stay until the day we trip down the aisle, Thorn! Since I announced to the papers last month that I was going to give some of my millions to help the worthy working classes, I've been driven crazy by cranks! I am going to give some of the money away, but first I'm going to decide how to benefit the most people the most permanently. For goodness' sake, don't let any of these nutty schemers get into Seacliff! I know I'll be safe there from the vast army of the unemployed!"

Thorn's eyes met Jocelyn's. "You tell her," Lyn said. "I can't talk about it without choking!"

"Talk about what?" Nola asked, turning curiously from one to the other. "Don't tell me anything has happened to Seacliff? Of course I know Grandmother Jocelyn is gone. Don't tell me her death revealed a skeleton in the ancestral closet?"

"A skeleton would be simple to deal with," Thorn commented dryly. He went on to tell her about the will and the arrival of the Mack family.

"We offered them money to leave," Jocelyn added aggrievedly, "but every one of them is as proud and stubborn as he is poor. I never saw such people!"

"We don't have to see them any more," Thorn reminded her. "Nola, there's an eight-foot fence running the length of the place and each family stays on its own side!"

'Mean And Horrible'

NOLA'S uncontrolled laughter pealed out. "It sounds priceless! Seacliff with a fence down the middle! Anyhow, since I am neither a Russell nor a Mack, I shall interview both sides. Honestly, darlings, it's funny—don't look so tragic. Where's your sense of humor? You make it look and sound like a mountain feud! Don't worry so—the invaders will probably trek back to Texas one of these days and Seacliff can be easily restored."

Thorndyke brightened. "You might be right, Nola, At least it doesn't help matters any for Lyn and me to worry and fret. What do you say, Lyn? Let's agree to forget our neighbors and live our own lives! . . . Is Geoff coming down for dinner tonight?"

"I think so. He said something about a shipment of three ponies due this afternoon—"

"Does he still talk nothing but horses?" Nola groaned. "Geoff is a bore of the first water! How do you bear up under it, Lyn? Oh, I just thought of something—why don't you sell Seacliff to me? That will get rid of your foes and then you can buy it back from me after they've been driven from the promised land."

Jocelyn fidgeted. "No can do, Nola. Grandma took care of that angle. I have to marry old Talbot's grandson before the estate can ever be sold."

Nola whistled softly. "Is he too bad?"

"He's impossible. A—a peasant. He's mean and horrible!"

"Come, now, he couldn't be that bad, Lyn."

"Wait and see. Just wait and see for yourself!"

"I will." Nola fitted a cigarette into her holder, held the flame of her lighter to its end, and puffed reflectively. "I just remembered that neither of you mentioned Bob's attitude toward the squatters. What is Bob doing, anyhow?"

Thorn's mouth pursed primly. "Bob is more hindrance than help. He mingles with the Macks, sympathizes with them, eggs them on, and pretends that he actually likes them! He's making a fool of himself over the young widow and her brat."

"Aha! The plot thickens!" Nola's laugh was indulgent. "Bob was always a non-conformist; at least from your point of view, Thorn. I have an idea he will give me some good advice about giving away my money."

"I don't see why you say that," Thorn objected. "Bob has no respect for money or for the people who have it. Are you serious, Nola, about giving it away?"

"Of course I am. Twenty millions . . . what can I do with it? I can't possibly spend it in a lifetime! I can give half of it away and still have far too much for us and our children and grandchildren, my darling!"

Thorn cleared his throat nervously. "Then why not let me advise you, dear? You always said Grandma Jocelyn was shrewd and she made me trustee of the estate. I've handled the money very well, haven't I, Lyn?"

"You've hung on to it very well!" Jocelyn retorted.

"Oh, let's skip the whole matter," Nola said in sudden exasperation. "I'd like a few weeks of peace."

"Please don't misunderstand," Thorn began, signaling a left turn from the highway into the grounds of Seacliff. "I—"

"Shush," Nola commanded. "Did you arrange for a man to pick up my trunks at the station tomorrow morning? I have hardly a decent rag with me."

Devastatingly Good-Looking

ON THE second morning after her arrival, Nola arose very early. There was determination in her movements as she dressed with studied carelessness in a specially purchased cotton frock and low-heeled sandals. Her hair, which reached below her shoulders, she let hang in girlish disarray. Her basque-style frock, bought yesterday afternoon at an exclusive shop in Santa Barbara, was tremendously becoming; yet, to the inexperienced eye, it would seem merely a blue housedress.

So far, she had not been able to get one single look at any of the Mack family. Thorn and Lyn had seen to that. Well, she was not accustomed to anyone curtailing her movements or knowing what she did. As a matter of fact, she preferred taking the initiative into her own hands, wishing to meet the Macks in her own way.

Now, on tiptoes, she stole down the back stairway past the built-on servants' quarters, and sauntered around the far end of the dividing fence.

She approached a tall young man standing with his back to her. His thick black hair shone in the morning sunlight. He appeared preoccupied in harnessing two horses to a plow. As Nola drew nearer she heard him singing softly in a rich baritone voice. A smile turned up the corners of her mouth.

"Good morning," she said. "Looks like it's going to be hot today."

He finished buckling the last piece of harness before he turned. He looked at her dress; her smiling face; her loose blonde hair. He smiled.

"Hello."

Nola thought: "Lyn must be blind or crazy! The man is devastatingly good-looking!" She asked, "Aren't you young Talbot Mack?"

"Sure. And you?"

"Nola Cranston. I'm visiting the Russells."

"Oh." His smile disappeared. "Bob told me about you. You're the heiress from Boston who is going to marry Thorndyke. I hardly expected to see you on this side of the fence."

"And why not?" she demanded. "I saw no 'Keep Off' signs."

His eyes were guarded, distrustful. "Haven't you heard about people who live on the wrong side of the railroad tracks? I live on the wrong side of this fence."

"Nonsense. There isn't any right and wrong side unless you believe there is. And I don't. You sound as if you had an inferiority complex. What's the matter with you, anyhow? You're young and healthy and good to look at."

"And poor as Job's turkey," he added. "And a farmer. 'Peasant' is the term I've had applied to me lately."

"Which sounds like Thorn," Nola smiled. "Surely you pay no attention to him? He's really a darling but he doesn't realize the day of ancestor worship is past. Don't tell me you haven't got a sense of humor? I think this whole darned business is the funniest gag I ever heard!"

Tally met her sparkling dark eyes. A slow grin spread over his face. "Maybe you are right. Maybe I lost my sense of humor when I lost the last cotton crop in Texas."

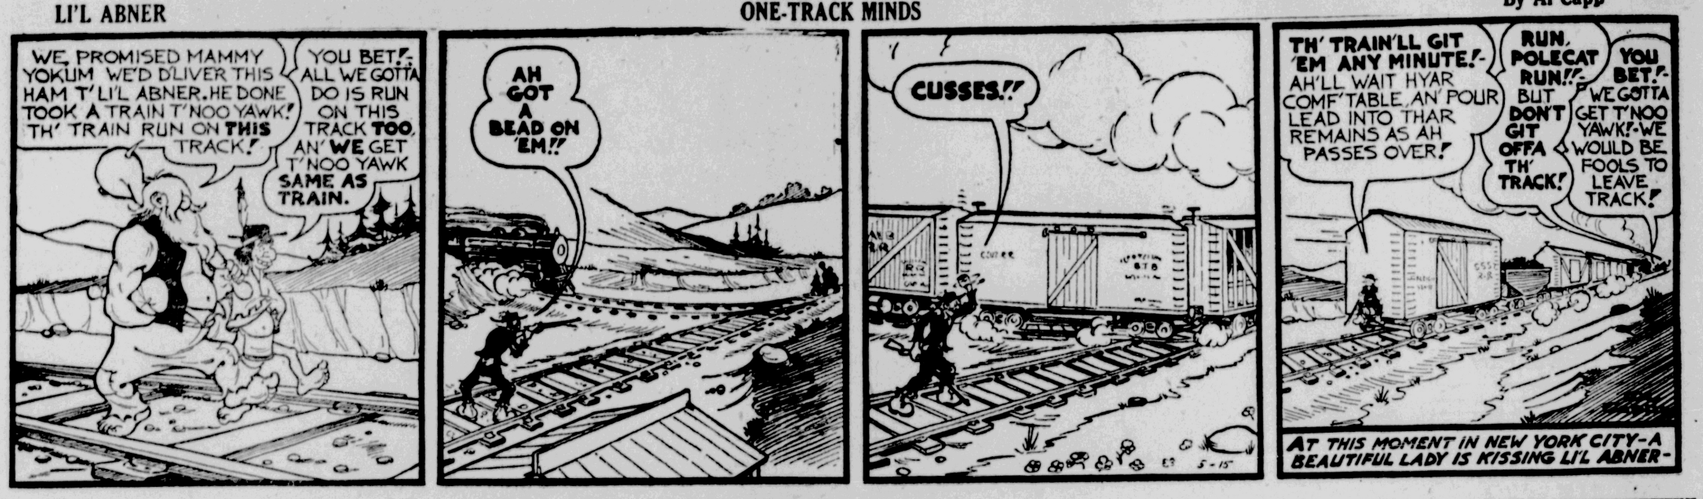

Continued tomorrow.

Beauty

These things are more beautiful
to me than the sunset on a rolling sea:
A little boy with manly grace
Trying to fill his Daddy's place;
A mother bravely fighting on
Long after strength and hope seem gone;
A father with his clothes worn thin
That children may hold up their chin;
The baby girl who runs to meet
Her brother coming down the street.
Yes, these are beautiful to me,
Filling my heart with ecstasy.

"Pa," said Johnny, looking up from his composition, "is 'waterworks' all one word, or do you spell it with a hydrant in the middle?"

A beauty parlor may help elderly women to look younger, but it can never help them remember where they put their spectacles.

Guest—Do you operate a bus between the hotel and the railroad station?

Manager of fashionable hotel—No sir.

Guest—That's strange. All my friends said you would get me coming and going.

The Story of a Dark Night

Night come stealin',
So am I;
Black as pitch,
So am I;
White hen's quick,
So am I;
Things start flyin',
So am I;
Hen get stuffed,
So am I;
Feathers found,
So am I;
Henhouse locked up,
So am I.

"Arithmetic is a science of truth," said the professor, earnestly. "Figures can't lie. For instance, if one man can build a house in twelve days, twelve men can build a house in one."

"Yes," interrupted a quick-brained student. "Then 288 will build it in one hour, 17,280 in one minute and 1,036,800 in one second. And I don't believe they could lay one brick in that time! Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in six days, six ships can cross it in one day. Or is that arithmetic?"

Friends

Friends in this world of hurry and work and sudden end,
If a thought comes quick of doing a kindness to a friend,
Do it that very moment! Don't put it off, don't wait!
What's the use of doing a kindness if you do it a day too late?

Mrs. Gabber (nagging)—You were always a fault-finder!

Gabber—Yes, dear; I guess that's why I found you.

He—Would you love your husband if he had only one eye?

She—Why, no. How terrible!

He—Then let me carry that umbrella.

EDUCATION—Never be content with what you have learned. Ever be on the lookout for additional knowledge. We must keep pace with the world or we are definitely out of the race. The man who graduates today and stops learning tomorrow is uneducated the day after.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 15, 1939.

TOO MUCH MUSIC

The greatest American evil of the present day is probably music. Well, not music exactly, but what goes by that name—let us say musical noise. Westbrook Pegler paid his respects to it in a recent column. He was glad to get back to New York, after idling around several outlying states for a couple of weeks. In the metropolis it seems easier to escape, he says, from "the radio or the restaurant music machines which maintain a hideous racket from dawn until the lights are turned out at night." He finds that nuisance widespread.

"Even in the hotels," he continues, "guests turn on the radio real loud, and nobody seems to even notice three or four of them blaring away on different stations on one floor, and the music which is discoursed by the grill room bands in the little local hot spots is the same ghastly mixture of incoherent shrieks and whinnies that is heard in New York, but louder."

Many people with sensitive ears have noticed the same thing. It wouldn't be so bad if hotels and other places of entertainment subject to this abuse would have some music-master whose duty it was to soften the din and see that not more than one radio program was blaring away at one time. The theory of musical entertainment is probably what it always has been—to "soothe the savage breast," not to drive normal people out of their minds.

BIRD ALLIES

Consider among the farmer's troubles the 300,000 types of insects which feed on farm crops and other forms of plant life. They constitute a tremendous menace to agriculture. If human beings had to fight them unaided, the insects would soon wreck us all. At least, that is the natural conclusion, in view of our lack of success so far in stopping some of the best-known pests.

Fortunately for us, we do not have to fight this war alone. There are 13,000 different kinds of birds in the United States, and most of them feed on the pestiferous insects, keeping the numbers down and giving man a chance to plant and harvest his necessary crops.

It has been estimated that insectivorous birds perform a seven-million-dollar service along this line to the farmers of Pennsylvania alone. No doubt if estimates were made elsewhere similar benefits would be found in all the 48 states.

SLAVERY IN AUSTRIA

One of the most recent developments affecting Jews in Austria is the canvas of Jewish homes by members of the Nazi Welfare organization. These visitors list the names of all male Jews more than 18 years old. This is done, it is explained in Vienna, for convenience in "conscripting the male Jews in case they are needed for work in labor camps." Such lists seem to have been prepared already throughout nearly all Germany.

It is well known that Hitler has been running short of manpower, not as a result of natural industrial development but on account of the concentration of labor on war industries. The Jews have borne their normal part in such armament. This present listing seems to indicate a special, compulsory contribution of labor on the part of a racial minority largely barred by discriminatory laws from normal occupations. If so, it means virtual slavery for most able-bodied Jews, on menial labor, as long as they remain in Germany.

POPULAR WEATHER REPORTS

At the end of the first month of operation of its new weather service the New York Telephone Company announced that it would treble the facilities. The public had shown its great interest in the forecasts by making 766,000 calls. The lowest number of inquiries was 7,500 in one day, the highest 58,000. Hereafter the company will be able to handle 100,000 calls a day.

In addition to the latest official forecasts the telephone weather bureau will also give hourly temperature and humidity readings during the summer. This will enable New Yorkers, or fair visitors from other states, to know just why they feel so good, or so uncomfortable, as the case may be, on any given day.

Apparently the weather will always be a matter of absorbing interest to human beings. There is more scientific measuring of it today than ever before, and information is available to all who can read newspapers or use a telephone. But it is still true that nobody does much of anything about the weather itself. We can prepare for it in various ways, but we can't prevent a thunder storm, a blizzard, or a drouth when it's on the weather program.

In this country there is no compulsory cheering and nobody is thrown in jail for giving a Bronx cheer.

Sure, congressmen are for economy—when the money is to be spent outside of their districts.

TREATMENT OF THE ANXIETY PATIENT

A few weeks ago when a patient consulted a physician about his nerves—sleeplessness, lack of appetite, anxiety—and the physician could find no organic trouble, he referred him to a "nerve specialist" because there might be something wrong with the patient's nerves which the general practitioner did not understand. Today, when the physician, after making a thorough examination, can find no organic trouble responsible for the symptoms, he does not refer him to the nerve specialist or psychiatrist but gives the necessary treatment himself.

In speaking of some of these nervous states—anxiety and depression—Dr. Franklin G. Ebaugh, Denver, in Southwestern Medicine, says that in the anxiety state, the patient often complains of being cold and unable to keep warm. He is tense, restless, uneasy, apprehensive, with cold, clammy hands and feet and dry mouth. There is a rapid pulse and high blood pressure, which are down to normal when the patient is asleep.

"In treating a patient with the anxiety complex it is important to avoid the pitfalls of telling him that he should stop worrying or that nothing is wrong with him, since he is unable to stop thinking about his trouble and knows quite definitely that something is wrong." The physician must spend an hour or more letting the patient tell his story about his family, business, and social life. As there is no organic trouble present and the patient now has confidence in the physician because he has shared his story with him, the physician is often able to give the needed help or advice. This means that the physician, while not exactly acting in the capacity of a priest, minister, or lawyer, nevertheless, with the whole background of the patient now known to him, can advise a holiday for the patient or a member of his family, a change of scene, perhaps a change of occupation, perhaps more rest and a gentle laxative.

The big point is that the physician now recognizes that the nervous or anxious patient needs to be given time to tell his story, if he is to obtain any real help.

Neurosis

Do you have pains or symptoms the cause of which is not revealed by medical tests? Do you sometimes feel inclined to do things you know to be senseless? Send for Dr. Barton's interesting booklet entitled 'Neurosis' (No. 103) which explains how the 'cure' of ailments is accomplished where none apparently exist. Send your request to The Bell Library, 247 W. 43rd street, New York, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to cover cost of handling and mention the name of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

May 14, 1919.—James W. Byrd, negro murderer, taken to Sing Sing by Sheriff Smith.

Boatyard men here still on strike. The strike had been in force over ten weeks.

Winston & Company were low bidders for Gilboa reservoir. Their bid was approximately $7,200,000.

Death of Mrs. Sarah DuBois of Cedar street.

Halpin & Friedman leased second floor of Mansion House for a waist factory.

Robert J. Howard opened law offices on Wall street in Leventhal building.

May 14, 1929.—Union mill workers here returned to work at old scale of wages. It was the first break in the building trades strike here. The mill men were to get a 5-day week commencing January 1.

Harry H. Flemming re-elected president of the education board.

Fred L. Van Deusen, lieutenant governor of eastern district of New York state of the Y's Men's Clubs, presented the White Plains Y's Men's Club with its charter.

May 15, 1929.—Charles J. Mullen appointed a member of the fire board by Mayor E. J. Dempsey.

Death of Miss Helen Roosa here.

Mrs. Samuel Kelly of Maple Hill died here.

Death of Mrs. Edward Jernegan in Saugerties. Here husband founded the Saugerties Post half a century ago.

There were 170 cases of measles here in April, it was reported to health board. There were also 31 cases of scarlet fever that month.

Amarillo, Tex., (AP).—A race by automobile with an eagle across the Texas plains is the latest sport for Panhandle ranchers. The hunters drive across the prairie parallel with small canyons where eagles nest. When one of the big birds is flushed the driver attempts to put the car under him to give his companion, armed with a rifle, a shot. A number of birds have been killed. The largest had a wing spread of eight feet. Most of them are Mexican eagles, although there are a few bald ones.

Modena, (AP).—A brickmason here, named Goldoni, believes in direct action on "bad" debt cases. After years of futile efforts to collect 60,000 lire he claimed were still owing him for building a suburban church tower, he went in the night with two helpers and walled in the tower doorway. The sexton's failure to call the faithful to prayers the following morning brought a gesticulating crowd, a disgusted parish priest and the law. Goldoni is defending his action in the local assizes.

Moscow, (AP).—A two-hulled water-glider equipped to carry 150 passengers at a speed of more than 40 miles an hour has been built here for Black Sea service between the southern health resorts of Sochi and Sukhumi.

The two hulls of the craft, each about 75 feet long, are connected by a wide, bridge-like structure with many windows for the convenience of sightseeing passengers.

Indianapolis, Ind., (AP).—Judge John R. McNelis gave Cecil Shock a novel way to settle the speeding charge against him. "This is my first offense and I haven't very much money," Shock told the judge. "Then I'll let you set your own fine," said Judge McNelis. "A dollar and costs and costs suspended," Shock ruled. The judge agreed.

They're In The Royal Party

By The AP Feature Service

Though it's taking 1,200-passenger liner and two men o'war to properly ferry the world's leading monarchs to North America, King George and Queen Elizabeth are leaving their army of servants behind.

There are only 30 persons in the royal suite. Eight personal servants are assigned to Their Majesties. The ten titled or distinguished aides, with one servant each, complete the party.

It'll be "every man to his post" on this royal junket, too. This royal retinue is the shock absorber between the monarchs and a sometimes crushing public. They earn their passage.

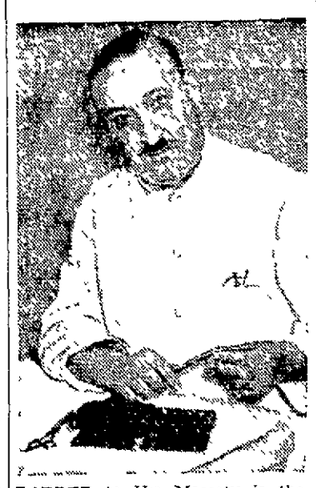

Black-haired Alan Lascelles (the king calls him "Tommy"), as acting private secretary to the king, probably is the head man of the traveling royal household. He is 51, once knocked about the world with the Prince of Wales; lived in Canada four years. He scouted the route of the royal tour earlier this year.

Here he is with some of the others who'll try to make Their Majesties' trip as comfortable and safe as possible:

RIGHT-HAND MAN Lascelles is the coach on Yankee customs and manners, also takes care of messages, arrangements, audiences, royal statements.

LADY-IN-WAITING Nunburnholme, a blue-blooded baroness, is one of the Queen's companions. She was a bridesmaid at Their Majesties' wedding.

BARBER to His Majesty is the assignment of Paul E. Tasse of Ottawa, Canada, who'll take his knives aboard the royal train just for the American tour.

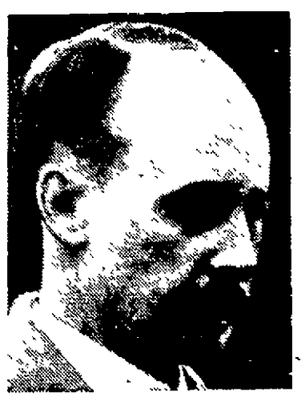

LORD-IN-WAITING, the Earl of Eldon, member of the royal court. He's 40, war veteran, owns 12,000 acres. He's the king's traveling companion.

GUARD of Their Majesties' safety, Albert Canning, of Scotland Yard, has hand-picked his men to assist local authorities during the royal appearances.

LORD CHAMBERLAIN to the Queen, the Earl of Airlie, is the social master of ceremonies. He's a wealthy, sports-loving Scotsman, 45; wounded in World War.

SECRETARY to the king, Capt. Michael Adeane (also an enquery) helps with correspondence, carries keys, supplies the king with reviews of news.

EQUERRY to the King, the Hon Piers Legh, is a world-traveler and a war veteran; he married an American. He'll be an advisor and companion.

Temporary National Economic Committee Is Now in a Position to Reveal Some Striking Facts

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 15.—For several months now the temporary national economic committee, sometimes called the anti-monopoly committee, has been nibbling away at some of the larger problems of business operation, but only this week is the committee getting down to fundamentals. It is about to penetrate the complicated but highly important question of capital flow in America.

Up to now, the committee has had a somewhat legalistic approach, keeping the idea of concentration of economic power within rather narrow areas of business practice, such as grow out of patent monopoly or price-fixing. This angle might be pursued for years without revealing much more than the existence of two opposite schools, which believe in amended anti-trust laws and aggressive competition, on the one hand, and the establishment of government cartels or regulation of price levels on the other.

This week, however, the committee in effect concedes that all elements of competition, fair and unfair, and all characteristics of monopoly, quasi-legal or unlawful, are directly related to the method by which capital is accumulated and distributed.

Something basically different from anything which used to happen before 1930 has come into the picture of capital flow. The old methods of floating issues of common stock to make capital available to large enterprise, and even, to a large extent, the old ways of floating large bond issues, have been modified, if not reduced to a relatively small operation.

Today, big business gets its capital from its own surpluses and reserves or sells privately a large issue of securities to an insurance company, and the days of numerous so-called public issues have passed into history.

The investment banking machinery lies idle, and, so far as small business is concerned, it never had any means of getting capital except by the hard way of finding individual capitalists here or there, or occasionally, and very occasionally, by persuading local banks to make three to five-year capital loans.

The reasons why investment banking machinery is idle have never been scientifically penetrated by a public inquiry. There will be some bankers in New York, for instance, who will insist that no "confidence" prevails and hence large issues cannot be offered to investors except now and then in a few gilt-edge cases. Other financial men will say that the rigid terms of the securities and exchange act are at bottom responsible and that corporations fear to take the risks of the racketeering lawsuits that might follow if their directors have to take personal responsibility for signing the prospectuses on which loans can be issued.

Certainly, the Securities and Exchange Commission itself, which is conducting the inquiry before the temporary national economic committee, is not inclined to put itself or the present law on trial on these points, so the main purpose of the commission's counsel doubtless will be to get at the facts of capital operation without discussing remedies at this time.

The study of capital flow is not a sudden affair. Peter Nehemikis, Jr., one of the able counsel of the SEC's staff, who is director of investment studies, has been working for several months now to get an objective survey made on what is actually happening to American capital in respect to large and small business.

Witnesses from Wall Street investment banking houses will describe past and present practices with particular reference to the custom that has grown among big corporations of avoiding the investment bankers altogether by having a direct private deal between a big bank or insurance company and the corporation in question, a practice that is allowable under present law.

If the private deals mean that corporations save money by getting their issues cheaper, there can be no objection, because this is merely applying the rules of competition to the capital market. But, if it turns out that many of the corporations which do not have an opportunity to get the securities of their particular types of business into insurance company portfolios are unable to have issues floated at all, the inquiry might well examine the underlying causes.

It may be that investment banking machinery itself needs an overhauling and that some changes in the laws will be helpful, or that the investment trust or group idea of selling securities of many smaller companies through a single finance institution or intermediate credit corporation will be suggested as a way of meeting the need for a better capital flow.

Clearly the evidence will show bulging bank reserves, meagre investment portfolios except for government bonds, and the great need of transforming idle money into workable capital issues. The view that, if some other administration came into power at Washington or if taxes were reduced or if the budget were balanced or if the Wagner law were changed, all the problems of America would solve themselves overnight is widely held among business men, but this presupposes the absence of any fundamental difficulties with the American economic system as a consequence of world conditions or the maladjustments that produced 10,000,000 unemployed before the present administration came into power. The temporary national economic committee is in a position to reveal some striking facts, and that's why the phase of its investigation just beginning may prove of extraordinary significance.

Wars of the Roses

The Wars of the Roses were a series of civil wars in England between the rival houses of York and Lancaster in the latter half of the Fifteenth century. They were so named because the badge of Lancaster was a red rose and that of York was a white rose. The House of Lancaster had obtained the throne of England in 1399. When Henry V died, he left as heir a child nine months old who proved both physically and mentally unfit. Under these circumstances Richard, duke of York, claimed the throne. The wars ended with the defeat and death of Richard III at Bosworth, August 22, 1485, and the succession of Henry VII, representing the house of Lancaster, whose marriage with a Yorkish princess, united the conflicting interests.

Marine Hospitals

The marine hospitals of the United States public health service are supported by appropriations made by congress for the "pay of personnel and maintenance of hospitals of the United States." From 1798 until 1886 they were maintained by a tax of 20 cents per month which was collected by the collector of customs from each sailor on American merchant marine ships. From 1886 to 1906 a special tonnage tax provided their maintenance. Since 1906 the hospitals have been maintained by direct appropriations made by congress.

About the Panama Canal

The canal works and other improvements in the Canal Zone are the property of the United States government. In a strictly technical sense, the United States did not acquire title to any territory in Panama by the Isthmian treaty of 1903. It obtained a perpetual right of occupation, use and control over the land within the zone. For this privilege it paid $10,000,000 outright, and pays a rental of $250,000 annually during the life of the treaty.

Non-Smokers in College

Forty per cent of the students at Niagara university at Niagara Falls, N. Y., do not smoke, according to a survey by the business statistics class under the guidance of Bernard P. Guerin, instructor in the school of business. The average cigarette smoker consumes about half a pack a day, according to the survey. Only seven students consumed more than a pack a day.

A dollar's worth of grass pasture fed to a dairy cow, brings a market return of $12 worth of butter or $15 worth of cheese or $35 worth of bottled milk, research at Texas A. & M. College indicates.

One-Armed Driver Wins Main Race Before 4,000 Fans

Plenty of Thrills for Season's Opening Crowd—Rhymer Takes Two of the Prizes

Woodstock, May 15.—(Special)—Wesley Saegesser of San Antonio, one-armed midget speedster, driving a $4,000 Offenhauser-powered automobile, yesterday won the 25-lap Woodstock Legion Speedway Special over one of the east's best fields and set up a new time trial record of :17.70.

The events which opened the 1939 racing season at the only midget track in the Hudson valley, sent more than 4,000 thrill-soaked fans home late in the afternoon with the feeling that they had witnessed one of the most superlative speed exhibitions ever staged in this vicinity.

Finishing behind the mighty Saegesser were Chet Gibbons of Freeport and Nutley; Rufus Anderson, Brighton, Mass., racer who last year copped one of the 25-lap features; Len Fanelli, of New Rochelle, who finished a short distance ahead of his brother, Harry. The event paid off in five places.

The prize for the best appearing ensemble of driver, pit crew and car was awarded by a trio of judges to Ben Rhymer. The judges were C. E. Gradwell, editor of the Overlook, Woodstock; Bob Brown, of the King Manufacturing Co., Kingston; and Joe Kelly, sports editor of The Freeman.

Three crashes which brought the spectators gasping from their seats, involved first the car of Lou Bolker, No. 33, of Paterson, N. J., and sent Bolker to the Kingston Hospital in the Conner's ambulaice; a nasty roll-over in which the driver, Nelson Shultis, of Wittenberg, sustained a fractured hand and bruised wrist, was treated at Kingston Hospital and returned home; and a quick flip of Bill West's No. 2 from which the pilot, Jazzy Chambers, escaped with a swollen lip and a shredded shirt.

The accident to Bolker's car occurred in the second qualifying heat at the throat of the south bend when he struck a hay bale. As his car rolled over the No. 10 of Tom Simonetti, of Waltham, Mass., crashed into the churning midget and pinned Volker underneath. He was picked up immediately, placed in the ambulance, rushed to the office of Dr. George Bassow in Woodstock and thence to the Kingston Hospital for observation and X-rays of the spine.

Following Bolker's accident the speedway officials delayed the events while waiting for the return of the ambulance. After a half-hour had elapsed Starter Paul Dominique took a poll of the drivers and when they signified their willingness a substitute automobile was placed at the ambulance station and the events went on.

Soon after Nelson Shultis rolled over when a car which had bounded up the bank at the outrun of the north bend smashed into him along the stretch coming into the judges' stand. Shultis was taken to the doctor's office in the substitute ambulance.

Chambers sustained his spill in almost the identical spot where Volker cracked-up and due to slipping into a bale of hay. Chambers was taken off in a Conner's ambulance which had returned by this time, but was treated on the track property. Both Shultis and Chambers made light of their experiences.

Saegesser Makes Record

Ted Rhymer, of Kingston, who last year drove for Ben Rhymer in the latter's R1, substituted for Len Fanelli who arrived too late for the time trial and set the first best time of the day in the first ride he ever took in the glistening red and silver R2. Rhymer's time was :18.65.

This mark stood for several trials and was broken by Charles Menges, driving No. 10 who turned the track in :18.40. Chet Gibbons, driving his outboard No. 7D, chalked up :18.10.

It was shortly afterward that Saegresser, a favorite on Southwest and Midwest ovals, spun out of the pits with his purring No. 7 Offenhauser and burned up the asphalt for the neat time trial record of :17.70. Saegesser received a big round of applause for his skillful driving.

Winners of Heats

Len Fanelli, driving Rhymer's R2, took the first qualifying heat in 2:27.84 and in doing so defeated a speedy field which included Chambers, Art Spore, Frank Simmonetti, Bill DeMosh, Brenton Dunham, Rufus Anderson and Saegesser. Wes Saegesser came in second and Jazzy Chambers third. Distance in each qualifying heat was eight laps, reversed starts.

The second qualifying heat was won by Chet Gibbons in 2:40.25. Drivers entered were Slim McKee, driving for Jack Franckling; Bob Wright, of Poughkeepsie; Pickles Bicklehaupt of Freeport, one of midgetdom's best drivers; Henry Fanelli, Don Jackson, Larry Simonetti, Ed Buckley and Lou Bolker. Henry Fanelli came in second and Bicklehaupt was third.

The third qualifying heat was taken by Carl Carlson of Albany, driving for Cliff Barnett, in 2:36.64 against Joe LeMire, Bert Lundgren, Larry Simmonetti, Charlie Street, Pip Henson and Charles Menges. Street came in second and Larry Simmonetti third.

The fourth qualifying heat was finished without any official time and was awarded to Al Karp driving No. 44 after Shultis' accident because the race had run six of the eight laps. Johnnie Nemo finished second and Ralph Palmer third.

Semi-Final Races

Len Fanelli, who pushed Rhymer's car for all it had in it and declared it one of the "sweetest" jobs he ever had driven, continued his winnings of the day by taking the first semi-final race of 10 laps in 3:30.12, defeating Saegesser by an eighth of a lap, while Rufe Anderson took third place.

The second semi-final race was won by Chet Gibbons, Al Karp second, and Ken Gallup, driving for Gus Paradise of Albany, was third. The winning time was 3:29.40.

The consolation event of laps went to Larry Hageman, No. 61, Chauncey Maggiacomo of Millbrook was second; Larry Shurter of Ashokan, third; Bill DeMosh was fourth and Ed Buckley was fifth.

Dispute Over Final

At the end of the final event of 25 laps Len Fanelli protested to Starter Paul Dominique that the race had begun before proper post positions had been taken by several of the contestants.

As the cars after two or three warmup laps came into the stretch Dominique gave the green flag to the lead cars of Saegesser and Gibbons and the two zoomed off in one of the hottest final contests ever staged on the local oval.

Fanelli, however, raised his hand in immediate protest, but his gesture was lost in the surge of cars and he continued in the race, taking fourth place. He registered vociferous protest, however, and insisted his proper position had been lost.

Praise for Spectators

Theron Lasher, track manager, was strong in his praise for the patient manner in which the audience endured the delay occasioned by the accidents to drivers.

"I've been approached by several of the racers themselves," he said, "who remarked to me about the orderly manner in which the spectators accepted the delays. It goes to show what good sports there are in this section. To show them we appreciate it all, we're going to put on a better show on May 28 and ask them all to come back."

The summaries:

First qualifying heat, 8 laps, reversed start: L. Fanelli, Saegesser, Chambers. Time: 2:37.84.

Second qualifying heat, 8 laps, reversed start: Gibbons, H. Fanelli, Bicklehaupt. Time: 2:40.25.

Third qualifying heat, 8 laps, reversed start: Carlson, Street, L. Simonetti. Time: 2:36.64.

Fourth qualifying heat, 8 laps, reversed start: Karp, Palmer, Nemo. No official time.

First semi-final, 10 laps: L. Fanelli, Saegesser, Anderson. Time 3:30.12.

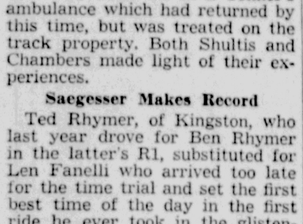

Second semi-final, 10 laps: Gibbons, Karp, K. Gallup. Time: 3:29.40.

Consolation, 10 laps: Hageman, Maggiacomo, Shurter, DeMosh, Buckley. Time: 3.02.27.

Final, 25 laps: Saegesser, Gibbons, Anderson, L. Fanelli, H. Fanelli. Time: 6:15.30.

Scorers were Bernard Lapo and Kenneth Wilson. Traffic was controlled by Sheriff Abram Molyneaux's deputies and the ambulance was escorted on trips by a car from the local station of the state troopers. Members of Woodstock Post, No. 1026, American Legion, were in charge of parking the cars.

FIRE CHIEF WINS MARATHON

Eleanor Holm, swimming star, hands the trophy to Clayton Bishop, fire chief of Onset, Mass., after he became the first man to win twice the difficult Albany-New York outboard motorboat marathon. He drove his closs B boat over the 180-mile course at an average speed of 40.681 M. P. H. He also won in 1936.

Bishop Wins Again In Outboard Race, Breaking Record

New York, May 15 (AP)—Clayton Bishop broke two records yesterday in the twelfth Albany-New York motorboat marathon.

It was a record that the Onset, Mass., fire chief won the race for the second time. He won it in 1936 and yesterday became the first "repeater" in the history of the dash down the Hudson. He was in the money for the fifth time in six years, and the finishing average generally doesn't run that high. In fact only 38 of the 99 boats finished, and conditions were unusually good for racing.

Bishop also smashed a speed record for Class B motors as he led the parade of "chips." The new motor which his firemen gave him drove his little hydroplane over the 130 miles of placid river in three hours, 11 minutes and 22 seconds for an average of 40.681 miles per hour.

The old record, set by Bishop in 1936, was 37.1 and the second finisher, Arthur Wullschleger, Cornell junior from Larchmont, N. Y., also beat that with a 39.904.

Other Records Fall

Records also were smashed for Class F outboards, 225 cubic inch inboard hydroplanes and unlimited inboards. Charles Mack of New Milford, N. J., third driver to finish, hoisted the Class F mark to 47.407 M. P. H. to wipe out Charles Cabot's 44.4 record set in 1932.

Baby, piloted by Zalmon G. Simmons of Greenwich, Conn., negotiated the distance in 2:25:55 for an average of 53.353 M. P. H., beating Gar Wood's 1925 record for 225 cubic inch racers. David Gerli of New York drove Lady Gen III to a record of 47.654 miles per hour for the unlimited class.

Upstaters Share Honors With Mets

Elmira, N. Y., May 15 (AP)—Upstate keglers shared championship honors equally with players from the New York city area today as the state bowling tournament ended.

Ridgewood's Tallyho's won the five man team championship and L. Anageros, New York, took the singles title.

For the upstaters, O. Mann and J. Mann, Buffalo, were the winners in the doubles and B. Bonarrico, Batavia, captured the all event championship.

The Tally-Ho's score of 3,097 netted them the top prize money ($275) of the five-week tournament. They won an additional $25 for the high game in the five man division with 1,087.

Arnold Cure Is With Ithaca Nine

Arnold G. Cure of Pine Hill and Albert Gruner of Highland are on a trip with the Ithaca College varsity nine, which tackles Arnold College at New Haven, Conn., and Seton Hall at South Orange.

With the second half gone, the Bombers have won four games and lost five. Three of their defeats were by one-run margins. They have been playing strong teams.

Cure, a junior in the physical education department, and Gruner, a sophomore, in the same branch of education, are both pitchers.

Racer Loses Leg

Langhorne, Pa., May 15 (AP).—Racing Driver Bud Henderson of Akron, Ohio, his left leg amputated, faced the end of his speedway career today. Henderson, 31, in the Bristol, Pa., Hospital, was hurt when his car overturned on the Langhorne track yesterday.

Colonials Prepare For Tuesday Game With Mohawk Nine

Manager Fred Davi put his Kingston Colonials, of the New York State Baseball League, through a two-hour workout at the Athletic Field yesterday afternoon in preparation for the opening game on Tuesday. Hank Bozzi's Mohawk Giants, champs of the loop in the last two seasons, will share the spotlight.

Following the workout Davi told the writer that Toddy Uhl will start against the Giants on Tuesday. Uhl began his career with the Colonials last season. When Glen Falls makes its appearance here on Friday Charlie Neff will get the call for mound duty.

When the Colonials take the field tomorrow night at the Athletic Field two new faces will be in the infield line-up, Jack Schatzel, who supplanted Paul Joyce, and Bill Finger, stellar shortstop. Finger has always been a standout man for Saugerties and now with the chance to work in an organized league, his playing should be even better.

With Finger and Charlie Francello working at the keystone combination, the Colonials will be strong. Both of these players are fast and fairly good hitters.

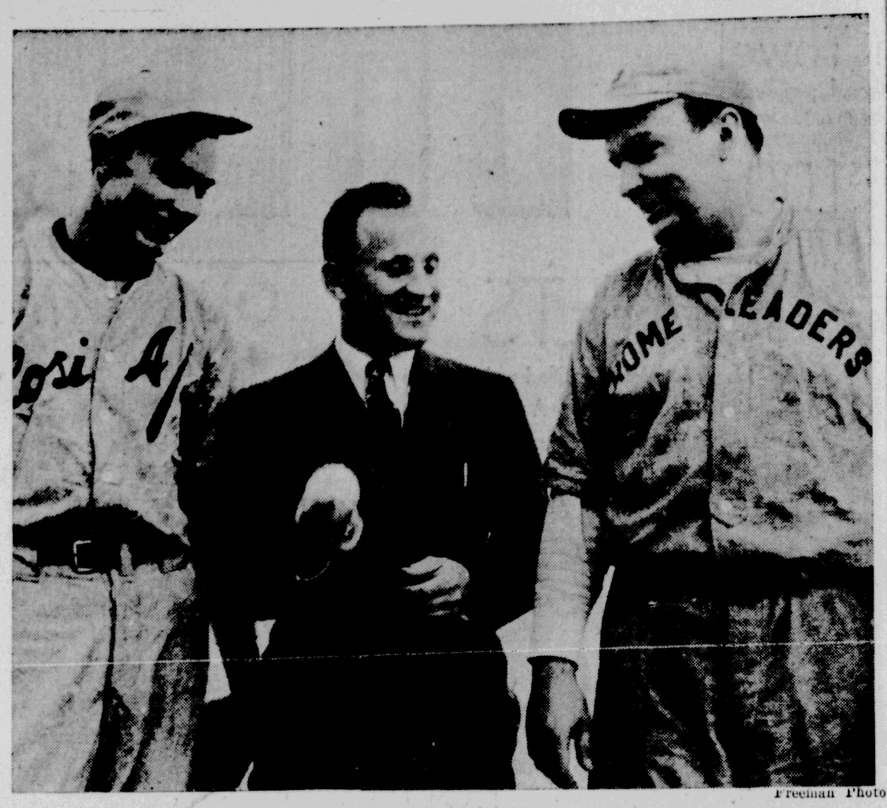

With the expenses already mounting up for Manager Davi it is the hope of the team that the Kingston fans will patronize the game tomorrow.

Bolker Sustains Fracture of Rib

Dr. George Bassow of Woodstock reported today as head of the medical unit of the Woodstock Legion Speedway, Inc., that Lou Bolker, of Paterson, N. J., who was injured at the quarter-mile oval for midget automobiles yesterday, is improved today and expects to return home Tuesday.

Bolker was sent to the Kingston Hospital in a Conners ambulance with Nurse Miss Dorothy Shultis of Woodstock. An X-ray taken at the hospital showed the fracture of a rib next to the spine.

Central Recreation Bowling Banquet Will Be Thursday

The first annual banquet of the Central Recreation League will be held Thursday evening at Huling's Barn at 7 o'clock. A program of speeches, entertainment and music is being arranged by the committee in charge.

The highlight of the program, of course, will be the presentation of championship trophies to the members of the Frank and Charles Barber Shop team, winners of first place. Trophies also will be awarded to the Jones Dairy squad for taking second place.

Joe Cherry and Jimmy Turck, who rolled high triple and high single respectively in the league, will receive trophies.

Efforts are being made to secure Peter Keresman, president of the Kingston Bowling Association, as guest speaker.

Tickets will be available tonight and will be distributed by Secretary Phinney. Captains are urged to make a report to Secretary Phinney no later than Tuesday night as to the number of reservations they desire.

Tigers Victors

Whitey's Tigers trounced the Clintondale nine 25 to 5 at Forsyth Park yesterday. Hasset and Kushner hit homers. "Red" Schibelski drove in six runs. The batteries were Elsworth and Hughes pitching and Barringer and Kushner on receiving end. For Clintondale Jones and Smith.

The dream of Ford Frick, National League president, visualizing eight clubs tied at the .500 mark on Labor Day looked pretty possible as a Centennial Year feature when the National League standings on the morning of May 5 showed the first-place Bees only a game and a half ahead of second place, the last place Pirates a game and a half below 7th place, and the other six clubs blanketed cozily under a 1-game margin, second place only one game ahead of seventh.

Hank (Old Golden-rod) Gowdy, coach of the Cincy Reds, is the only player who participated in that all-time long-distance baseball game, the 26-inning Boston-Brooklyn tie on May 1, 1920, who is active in the major leagues today.

Joneses and Independents In City Loop Clash Tonight

Tonight, at 6:15, Jones Dairy and the Independents hook up in the City League's feature diamond duel at the Athletic Field. The Dairymen and the Merchants are tied for the loop leadership, both having emerged victorious in their single start. Ad Jones' boys administered a sound 10-0 whitewashing to Grunenwalds Friday while the Independents took Boiceville over the hurdles by an 8-1 count.

Bob "Schoolboy" Bush will be on the hill for the business boys with Joe Brown or big Julius Chick toeing the mound for the milk merchants. Bush flashed brilliant form against Boiceville and seems set for another sensational hurling season. Jones Dairy put on another copyrighted exhibition of heads-up ball making three hits account for 10 markers.

With both Jones Dairy and the Independents out for a win to step into the leadership, the season's best ball game to date should be unreeled tonight for the patrons of the twi-circuit. There will be a special meeting of all managers in the home-plate bleachers directly following tonight's contest. All are urged to be present to discuss matters of great importance.

When Paul Waner, Lloyd Waner and Fern Bell compose the Pittsburgh Pirates outfield lineup, there's a common geographical bond for them—the thriving city of Ada, Okla. Bell was born there. The brothers went to college there, their alma mater being Oklahoma East Central State Teachers' College.

Like Babe Ruth and some other sluggers whose specialty was homer-hitting, Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn Dodgers' four-bagger pacemaker, started his baseball career as a left-hand pitcher.

Amateur Card on Tap at Auditorium Featuring Sluggers

First Fistic Program in Three Weeks Expected to Draw Crowd—Slam Bang Battlers Matched

Fans anxiously awaiting news about boxing are promised a good amateur card for Friday night at the municipal auditorium. The bill will be the first in three weeks and features some of the best sluggers among the simon pures.

On top of the card are two matches that rate as sensational attractions. In one Sergeant Perry, Diamond Belt light-heavy-champion, formerly of West Point, will meet Dutch Williams of Newburgh, and in the other Monk Armstrong will be paired with Buddy Bookman, the fiery Hurleyville slugger, who made a hit on the last card.

Perry, who has fought the best of them, and recently represented the Adirondack A. A. U. on the east coast in the national amateur tournament at San Francisco, should have his hands full with the hard punching Dutch Williams, who is a favorite at the auditorium.

Buddy Bookman, who fought a sensational battle in his first appearance here, and Monk Armstrong should give the fans a lot of action as they vie for the favoritism of the house, which is expected to be packed to capacity for the fistic program.

The rest of the card looks as good as the two top bouts. It is as follows:

Carl Beck, Poughkeepsie slugger, vs. Joe Andrews of Albany.

Charlie Forezzi, Albany, vs. Charley "Honeyboy" Raigins, Saugerties.

Jackie Hogan, Kingston pride, vs. Lennie Rubiletto, Albany.

Leo Sarinelli, Albany, Adirondack A. A. U. bantamweight champion, vs. Tony Gartex, rugged Poughkeepsie battler, who won the Golden Gloves novice title here.

Talk among fight fans indicates a crowd as many have missed the weekly fisticuff programs during the recent layoff.

Sports Season in Full Bloom— Looks Like Bettina vs. Conn

The sports calendar is a full one this week. . . . Softball games galore . . . Colonials vs. Mohawk Giants in the State League Tuesday at the Athletic Field, and the regular City Loop contests . . . And a card of boxing bouts at the Municipal Auditorium, Friday night . . . Mrs. Dan Chandler, wife of the army officer formerly of Kingston, narrowly missed winning the southern women's golf championship . . . She lost to Marion Miley 2-1 in the 36-hole final at Puenta Verda Beach, Fla. . . . Winning, Miss Miley retained her championship . . . That softball game between the Immaculate Conception and St. Peter's team last week established some kind of record . . . It was played in 38 minutes . . . Len Fanelli, Ben Rhymer's midget auto race driver, was the victim of a bad start in the feature race at Woodstock yesterday . . . Fanelli made a strong protest, but it was overruled . . . He won first in the first qualifying heat and the semi-final and might have walked off with the big prize if it hadn't been for that hard luck in the start . . . Personally we think he had reasons to storm all over the place . . . But, Ben Rhymer didn't do so badly with his new car, anyhow . . . And he won the award for having the neatest and best looking crew at the track.

Commodore Frank Mower and his band of Kingston Powerboat Association sailors did a swell job Sunday helping in the outboard motorboat races. . . . Charlie Brooks is the oldest in a New London family of 13 children. . . . He began his golf career at 13. . . . Built 13 courses and now is beginning his 13th year on the 13th course. . . . Jack Kearns is trying for reinstatement as a fight manager in Illinois. . . . It'll be Melio Bettina of Beacon, and Billy Conn in New York some time in July. . . . Or maybe Fred Apostoli might be paired with Conn. . . . Bettina, recognized by the New York State Boxing Commission as the 170-pound champion of the world, began his career in Kingston as an amateur. . . . What the boys are saying, as reported by Eddie Brietz of the Associated Press: Bill McKechnie: We're pretty good now, but we're going to get a lot better. . . . Barney Ross: I can't get over the thrill of realizing I'm finally out of and done with boxing. . . . Billy Terry: This is a screwball race, so don't be surprised if I say that of all the teams the Phils have looked the best. . . . Fred Perry: I didn't go to England (with Budge) because I wanted to go to Hollywood to see Helen Vinson.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

It took the biggest swap baseball has had in years to shake the Detroit Tigers out of their sleeping sickness, but they roared like healthy animals when they finally stirred.

Up until Saturday night when they traded Vernon Kennedy and five other players for Buck Newson and three others, the Tigers had won only one of 11 games since May 1.

So the double damper they slapped on the St. Louis Browns, 14-4 and 7-4, yesterday in the first bargain bill of the 1939 major league program may have made some of their future foes tremble.

On first glance, at least, the deal appeared beneficial to both clubs, but since the Bengals had the most marbles to begin with they seemed to have profited most. For months Detroit fished for a good pitcher and a good outfielder. These were obtained without giving up anyone who figured importantly in the Tiger plans.

Newson is a workhorse who pitched 330 innings for the Browns last year and won 20 games. With Tommy Bridges and a renovated schoolboy Rowe he made Detroit three good pitching numbers backed by Archie McKain, Al Benton and Dizzy Trout as added starters who have a chance of clicking.

Roy (Beau) Bell is a good defensive outfielder who batted .344 in 1936 and .340 in 1937. Even last season when he slumped to a .262 percentage he brought home 84 runs.

Ralph Kress, 32-year-old shortstop, who hit .302 last year, and Pitcher Jim Walkup were the other Detroit acquisitions. Both Bell and Kress were pressed right into the Tigers' lineup yesterday and bagged hits in each game.

To get this quartet the Tigers gave up Kennedy, a pitcher who won his first nine starts last year and then lost nine of his 12 decisions during the remainder of the season as well as his first two this year; Roxie Lawson, George Gill and Bob Harris, who between them have won two and lost three games to date; Infielder Mark Christman and Outfielder Chet Laabs.

If Kennedy finds his old form, or perhaps if he doesn't, the pitchers should strengthen the Brownies' staff and that's about all St. Louis hoped for in the deal.

Yesterday's games, witnessed by 15,328 fans, largest turnout for the Browns in a dozen years, were decided by the clouting of Hank Greenberg and Rudy York. The big first baseman hit his fifth and sixth homers of the year with men on base in the first game and York delivered a pinch home run with the bases loaded in the ninth inning of the nightcap. The performances brought the Tigers out of the cellar.

Ruffing Blanks 'Em

In the other American League games Red Ruffing shut out the Philadelphia Athletics, 10-0, on four hits and the slugging of his fellow New York Yankees, for his fifth victory without defeat; Young Bob Feller won his sixth game against one defeat, beating the Chicago White Sox, 9-4, on six hits, and the Boston Red Sox outrallied the Washington Senators, 5-4, in the 12th inning, with Lefty Grove getting credit although removed in the 12th.

Carl Hubbell made his 1939 bow as a starting pitcher and beat the Phillies, 2-1, when Pinchhitter Ken O'Dea homered in the ninth. Lou Fette, the Boston Bees' ace, chalked up his fifth win against one setback by shutting out Brooklyn, 1-0. The Pittsburgh Pirates cuffed their Chicago Cubs' jinx, 5-2, and the first place Cardinals blasted five Cincinnati pitchers for a 9-5 victory.

Joneses Split

In their double-header at Napanoch, Sunday, the Jones Dairymen split with the team from the institution there, winning the first game by the slight margin of 2-1, and dropping the second to the insiders, 3-2.

The first contest was won in the opening inning, when the Milkmen tallied two runs. Napanoch made its lone marker in the sixth frame. In the nightcap, the Joneses again rolled up two runs in the initial canto, and the Napanochers one each in the third, fourth and eighth, to win.

Toffel and Costello pitched for Gil Sampson's softies and Nicholetti and Moran for the home club. Toffel registered five strikeouts, and Nicholetti six.

Other Notes

The members of the Holy Name softball team of Wilbur will meet at 7:30 this evening, and President F. J. McCardle requests all to be present to take part in important discussions.

Tonight at 6:15 on the armory diamond, the Wurts Street Baptists will play a Federation League game and the following players are asked to be ready on time: Schick, Myers, Davis, Kirchofer, Tom Broskie, Letus, Voight, Gil Barnhart, Warren Barnhart, C. Nestell and Dave Steen.

Presentation Wins

Flashing winning form behind the steady pitching of Nick Auringer, the Presentation Holy Name pounded out a 9 to 2 victory over the Port Ewen Firemen at Port Ewen Sunday afternoon. Murdock and Mains pitched for the losers with Freer catching, while Hertica caught for the victors.

K. B. A. Officers Smile for Photog

At the recent joint banquet of the Kingston Bowling Association and the City and Silver Palace leagues last week in the Stuyvesant Hotel, these K. B. Seated are James Norton, first vice-president; Charles Tiano, secretary; Peter Keresman, president; Harry Hutton of the executive committee; (standing) Ad Jones, fourth vice-president; Tom Rowland, third vice-president; Clifton Quick of the executive committee and Martin Kellenberger, second vice-president.

Challedon, great mud runner, with all four feet off the ground, is crossing the finish line in the famed Preakness Stakes at Baltimore, a length and a half ahead of Gilded Knight. Volitan finished third, and Johnstown, winner of the Kentucky Derby, was fifth in the field of six. For the first three quarters of a mile Johnstown led the field, but the mud proved Johnstown's undoing in the stretch.

THE LAMBASTE WALK

UNHAPPY MOTHER'S DAY FOR BOB

Bob Feller (right), just after pitching the Cleveland Indians to a 9-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox, stands at the bedside of his mother, who was struck by a fouled ball which Bob himself had pitched. The ball, a foul top off the bat of Marvin Owens of the Sox, in the third inning, struck Mrs. Feller on the forehead. She had been watching the game. With Bob at her bedside are her husband, William, and her daughter, Marguerite, 10. Six stitches were required for the wound.

Divine Desires 'Heaven' Nearer Gotham Is Rumor

Once again it is rumored that Father Divine's International Heaven at Greenkill Park may pass out of the ownership of the Divine cult. It is reported that negotiations have again been resumed for disposition of the premises and that it is being sought for the erection of a large resort.

The property was purchased by Father Divine with a great flourish and much fanfare when he announced that he was going to establish his "International Headquarters" at Greenkill Park, once the training grounds for Max Schmeling. At that time there was a large hotel on the premises as well as a number of cottages and old stone houses.

A number of people from the cult took over the premises, a pilgrimage was made to the "Heaven" by several hundred followers who came by boat to inspect the International property. Then came a fire about a year ago and the large hotel was burned. It was announced the building would be re-built "bigger than ever" but it never was re-built. Like other Divine property destroyed by fire, the ruins lay for a time and were then cleared up.

Elverhoj down the river at Milton was bought and Divine took his followers to that spot. At Greenkill Park the remaining houses were used but the big hotel never rose from the ashes. Last year it was reported the property might be sold and that negotiations were pending but apparently they fell through.

Now it is reported that new negotiations are under way. Located on the Rondout creek, the property takes in a large tract of land with sightly locations, a running stream and bathing pool.

Men's Clubs Meet Tuesday Night

The annual meeting of the Federation of Men's Clubs will be held Tuesday, May 16, at Comforter Hall, Wynkoop Place instead of at the Y. M. C. A. as usual. All delegates are expected to attend and as many members of the clubs as possible since this is an open meeting for all members.

Dr. H. W. Keator, president of the Ulster-Greene Boy Scout Council, will be the speaker and has a real message on scouting. There will also be action on the co-operative picnic.

Softball Meeting

A special meeting of the board of governors and managers of teams in the Catholic Softball League will be held Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in St. Mary's School Hall.

Trinity-Baptists

Trinity M. E. softball players are requested to be at the church no later than 6 o'clock this evening to go to the Barmann Park diamond for the game with the Albany Avenue Baptists at 6:30 o'clock.

500 Men Attend Corporate Rites

against the un-God-like and un-American beliefs.

St. Peter's Holy Name

With 184 men attending, including delegations from the city's police and fire departments and local postmen as guests, St. Peter's Holy Name Society made an impressive beginning at its first annual communion breakfast Sunday morning at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

The Rev. Joseph D. Ostermann, pastor of St. Nicholas Church, New York city, was the guest speaker and his "Mother's Day" counsel was as thought provoking as it was eloquent.

More than 200 men received communion at the 8 o'clock Mass at St. Peter's, which was celebrated by Father Ostermann. The representatives of the city departments were in uniform and Chief Joseph L. Murphy headed the firemen while Sergeant Fred C. Stoudt lead the policemen.

Immediately after the Mass about 100 cars, headed by a police escort proceeded to the Stuyvesant Hotel for the breakfast.

After the morning repast the society's president, George P. Reis, called the gathering to order and in well chosen words thanked the guest servicemen for their attendance and commended Henry J. Bruck and his committee for their work in arranging the affair. President Reis then presented the Rev. Henry E. Herdegen, spiritual director of the society and toastmaster for the occasion.

In introducing the guest speaker Father Herdegen said of Father Ostermann that "aside from his intellectual and cultural endowments his accomplishments are many, varied and priestly. Those who had the privilege of his friendship know him as the most unselfish man in the world."

Father Ostermann's Speech

In opening his remarks Father Ostermann expressed his pleasure at again returning to Kingston and in a tribute to Father Herdegen, congratulated him on the fine work he is doing here.

In referring to the fact that Sunday was Mother's Day, he recalled the words of Christ on the cross "Son, remember thy mother." He reminded his audience that as Catholic men they have three mothers, their earthly mother, a heavenly mother in the Blessed Virgin Mary, and third a spiritual mother, the church. "God's goodness is best illustrated in that he gave us a heavenly mother," said Father Ostermann, and in referring to Mother Church he said "it is the one place to find clarity of thought in a confused world." He stated that there were occasions when the church's doctrines were criticised and ridiculed and exhorted the men to defend their church as they would their earthly mother.

In conclusion Father Ostermann counseled the men to be loyal to God and to their church.

Port Ewen Holy Name

The very Rev. Martin J. Drury, pastor of St. Mary's Church and dean of Ulster and Sullivan counties, defined the meaning of Catholic Action to 65 members of the Church of the Presentation Holy Name Society, Port Ewen, at their communion breakfast. The breakfast, prepared entirely by members of the society, was held at St. Leo's Hall, adjacent to the church.

Father Drury defined Catholic Action as the laity's assistance to the Apostolate of the Hierarchy. The speaker took his audience through the various steps that constitute Catholic Action. He impressed his audience with the importance the laity plays in the teaching, government and sanctification of the church and themselves. Father Drury stressed the importance of Catholic literature and subsequent knowledge one derives from the reading of good magazines and papers.

He congratulated the society on the splendid representation at the breakfast and he also made the assertion that he was very pleased to be with the Port Ewen men, the first group of men he has addressed since becoming the head of the deanery.

The Rev. Martin T. Leddy, pastor of the Church of the Presentation and spiritual director of the society, also congratulated the men on their splendid cooperation. The attendance at the breakfast constituted close to 100 per cent of the potential membership. P. J. Beichert, president of the society, acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers.

The committee which arranged the details for the breakfast was: John Henry, Otto Lavsa, Walter Harrold, Robert Henry, Richard Donnelly, Jr., William Cannon, Jr., Paul Beaver and Joseph Zoda. The ladies, who assisted in serving, included Mrs. Walter Harrold and the Misses Cannon, Strano, Barton, McGowan and Beichert.

Apple Blossoms in Ulster Continue to Attract Visitors

The Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival which ushered in the annual spring display of blossoms last week apparently brought forth its compliment of visitors over the past week-end. Publicity which accompanied the festival last week probably was responsible for the influx of visitors Sunday.

Very prominent was the number of out of town cars and also out of state cars which were touring the apple blossom country over the week-end. A drive through the Hudson valley country was well worthwhile and for the next few evenings local people will find a sight well worthwhile by driving through the apple country where trees are now in full blossom. Out through New Paltz, Modena, Milton, Highland, Ulster Park and down the Lattintown valley will be found a gorgeous display of blossoms.

At present the blossoms are at their height and will remain so for the next few days.

The favorable publicity which was given the Apple Blossom Festival in the metropolitan press last week was continued when the New York Herald-Tribune carried a picture of Queen Joan Craig in the rotogravure section on Sunday.

Not only is Ulster county proud of its apple blossoms but there are many beautiful displays of other spring flowers, noticeably tulips. A most attractive display of Darwins will be found on the grounds of the Governor Clinton Hotel where 2,000 bulbs in blossom are the pride of Mrs. Gross, wife of Manager R. R. Gross. On the Kingston-Highland road near the Riverside school is a beautiful display of tulips planted in the triangle at the Sun gas station where the new road crosses the old road. Numerous private displays are to be found throughout the country and in the city of Kingston.

Traver Is Gardener

County Judge Frederick G. Traver beside his judicial duties has time to do a bit of gardening as is indicated by the beautiful display of tulips which are now in full bloom at his home on Fair street. The display of cottage tulips is shown in almost every conceivable shade and color.

The total waterborne lumber shipments from the Province of British Columbia in 1938 amounted to 1,192,195,672 board feet compared with 1,107,377,269 board feet in 1937.

The Coterie Closes Season With Special Musical Program

The tea and musicale held Saturday afternoon at the chapel of the First Reformed Church by The Coterie brought to a close the year's program. The program committee had arranged a special musical program by Helen Smith Olsen, pianist, which was presented before over 100 invited guests.

The guests were welcomed by Mrs. Melvin R. Coutant, president of the club, who introduced Mrs. Harry G. Smith. Mrs. Smith explained that during the year the club had been studying "Biographies of the Renaissance" and that the composer Mozart was the last on the program to be studied. Miss Mabel Hale then read a paper on the life and achievements of the composer.

Helen Olsen, in keeping with the theme of the day opened her program with Mozart's "Fantasia in C Minor." The other numbers included "Two Part Invention, No. 14" by Bach, "Nocturne in E flat" by Chopin, "Serenade of the Doll" by Debussy from the suite, "The Children's Corner" and the "Valse Brilliante" of Mana-Zucca. The Debussy number was prefaced by an original story which described each part of the dance.

As encores the artist played "Humoresque" by Dvorak and "Valse Glissandi" the composer of which was unknown.

This accomplished pianist, the daughter of Mrs. Harry G. Smith, of The Huntington, resides in White Plains and is the wife of Harold M. Olsen. The entire program which she presented Saturday afternoon was one which showed her to be a dynamic personality, with a finished and musicianly masterly of the art.

Following the program a social hour was enjoyed. The tea table, which was decorated with tulips, lilacs and narcissus, was presided over by Mrs. Louis Beeres and Miss Isabel Thompson. Mrs. Frank W. Thompson presented Mrs. Olsen with a corsage of gardenias as a token of appreciation from the members of The Coterie.

Miss Herzog in Character Role

Prominent in the cast of characters in the Ulster County Theatre Association's production, "Night Must Fall," is Miss Ann Herzog, in the character role of Mrs. Bramson. Miss Herzog is one of the original founders of the group and was its first secretary. She also assisted Howard Koch in directing, "Giving Us This Day," the association's first play.

Emerson, Wellesley, Boston University and Oxford have contributed to Miss Herzog's preparation for her acting. Leading roles in two high school plays, directing the alumni play and a year's work with Claire Tree Major have constituted a small part of her experience.

"Night Must Fall" will be presented in the high school auditorium Thursday evening, May 18, at 8:30 p. m.

Miss Jane Holcomb Gives Home Recital

One of the most charming musical events of the waning season was presented Sunday afternoon when Miss Jane Holcomb gave her debut recital in the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Holcomb of Fair street, to about 70 invited guests. Miss Holcomb, who is a pupil of Lina M. Schmidtkonz, presented a program which included works by Chaminade, Beethoven, Durand and Chopin.

The young pianist exhibited an adequate technique and a secure memory. Her projection of the various numbers on the program was authoritative and well poised. Perhaps the most commendable quality in her playing was her sense of rhythm and feeling for delicate accentuation.

Miss Holcomb was happiest in the Chopin group with which she closed her program. Here she disclosed a singing tone of real beauty and a maturity of interpretation which was remarkable for so young a pianist. With the gifts of which she is undoubtedly possessed, Miss Holcomb should go far in her chosen field.

Miss Alberta Loughran was the assisting soloist. She sang two numbers with unaffected charm and grace. Miss Justine Rowe was the accompanist.

Following the recital an informal reception was held for the young musicians, at which time they received the enthusiastic congratualtions of the large company of guests.

Grand Jurors Hold Annual Dinner

Freeman Photo

Schools Exhibit Classroom Art

The first art exhibit held in recent years in the public schools was held over the week-end. A few of the schools will be open Tuesday for those who still wish to visit the exhibits. School No. 2 will be open in the evening and School No. 7 will be open in the afternoon.

Each room has its own display. On the walls of some of them are large drawings or paintings made by the entire class. These are particularly interesting because, after a discussion about the topic about to be executed, the children all drew on large papers. Each made a picture of what he thought the large picture should look like. The best parts of all the individual pictures were then incorporated into the freize. In some cases these individual drawings were hung near the completed freize.

There are also drawings made by each child with no intention of using them in the large picture. In these the particular ability of the child shows more to advantage.

Free Expression

Especially in the lower grades was the development of the artistic ability interesting. From mere scribbles developed a symbolic type of art, a naise surrealism, definable only by the child. Finally the pictures become understandable to the adult.

Although the work was displayed in the halls, all the other work of each child was on his own desk. These folders were open for examination.

Besides the drawings were folders showing penmanship for the past year and another booklet with the work done in the art appreciation class.

The work of each room was done by the children under the personal supervision of the classroom teacher and directed by Miss Elizabeth M. Dralle, art supervisor.

Also noticeable was the number of times in which the classroom teachers have used the art program to enrich the work in other subjects, geography, history, English and history, especially. Many interested adults have helped the children in research for their pictures and other projects.

All the schools in the city, including the Myron J. Michael School, were open Friday, and School No. 6 also was open Saturday.

Ulster Park WCTU Holds Special Mission Meeting

Roll call followed, answered by a verse pertaining to temperance or missions. Reading, "The Liquor Menace," by Mrs. Berens and Mrs. McLane.

The temperance and mission catechism was read responsively. Reading, "From Some of the Lines" where some of the temperance missionaries are working. A reading by Mrs. Wheeler. Reading, "Bombay to Go Dry in August," by Mrs. Coutant. A poem, "The Torch Bearer," was read by Mrs. Wheeler. Reading, "South Africa and the Color Question," by Mrs. Cole. Singing, "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee." After a short business session in charge of Mrs. B. T. Van Aken the meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer.

Complete Your Garden With Annuals, Herbs

Bare Spots Burst into Bloom!

Summer coming! And now to plant quick-blooming annuals so there'll be no ugly gaps when iris, other early bloomers fade. And what about that fragrant little herb border you've dreamed of?

Edge the walk in your back garden with such sweet-smelling flowering herbs as lavender, add other herbs to give spice to your menu—borage, sage, mint. Between stones plant lemon-scented thyme—good-natured about being stepped on. Both annual and perennial herbs may be grown from seeds, perennials may be started from roots or pot plants.

What to choose for those empty spaces in your flower garden? Colorful quick-blooming annuals—nigella, candytuft, zinnias. Ideal as cover for plants past their beauty are tall hollyhocks, cosmos.

Annuals are good natured, often do well where sewn. But for best results, sow seeds in a little bed, transplant healthiest seedlings as the diagram shows.

How to keep your garden healthily abloom, check pests, diseases? Our 32-page booklet by a well-known horticulturist advises you on diseases, pests, soils, fertilizers. Tells how to plant and care for annuals, perennials, herbs, roses, bulbs, shrubs, lawns, trees and vines.

THE DAILY Freeman

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters

Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.

Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seacliff.

Yesterday: Lyn is crushed by the appearance of the roadside stand, and Bob's part in it. Thorn's fiancee, Nola, is coming for a visit.

Chapter 13

Nola

JOCELYN and Thorndyke met Nola Cranston at the Santa Barbara airport. It took them a few minutes to push through the surrounding circle of newspaper reporters and cameramen, for Nola Cranston was heiress to the Cranston shoe factory millions and everything she did was news.

As the two Russells looked on she posed graciously on the steps of the airliner, a tall, elegant figure in tailored black, her shoulders draped with silver fox skins. From her hand made shoes to her Paris turban she registered assurance and sophistication. She was not beautiful; rather, unusual. "Striking" would fit her better than any other adjective. Her long hair, worn in a sleek, heavy knot on her neck, was bleached to the color of white-gold, her eyes, elongated and wisely mysterious, were very black, her nose was sharp and thin, its aquiline arrogance contradicted by a wide, generous mouth which parted often to show perfect rows of white teeth.

Spying Thorn and Jocelyn, she beckoned to them with a slim scarlet-tipped hand which held a cigarette in a long ivory holder. "Come here, darlings!" she commanded. "I want you both in my pictures."

Thorndyke, smug and pompous and proudly possessive, put his arm about Nola's waist and kissed her. His manner told the audience: "This woman is my future wife. Aren't we a rare and handsome pair?"

Later, with Nola wedged between them in the front seat of the cream-colored sedan, they all tried talking at once and had to subside, hopelessly, into laughter.

"Boston is impossible this time of year," Nola finally managed. "Melting snow, drizzling rain, and unbearably stuffy people. I made up my mind on the way out here that I'm not going back. Here I am and here I am going to stay until the day we trip down the aisle, Thorn! Since I announced to the papers last month that I was going to give some of my millions to help the worthy working classes, I've been driven crazy by cranks! I am going to give some of the money away, but first I'm going to decide how to benefit the most people the most permanently. For goodness' sake, don't let any of these nutty schemers get into Seacliff! I know I'll be safe there from the vast army of the unemployed!"

Thorn's eyes met Jocelyn's. "You tell her," Lyn said. "I can't talk about it without choking!"

"Talk about what?" Nola asked, turning curiously from one to the other. "Don't tell me anything has happened to Seacliff? Of course I know Grandmother Jocelyn is gone. Don't tell me her death revealed a skeleton in the ancestral closet?"

"A skeleton would be simple to deal with," Thorn commented dryly. He went on to tell her about the will and the arrival of the Mack family.

"We offered them money to leave," Jocelyn added aggrievedly, "but every one of them is as proud and stubborn as he is poor. I never saw such people!"

"We don't have to see them any more," Thorn reminded her. "Nola, there's an eight-foot fence running the length of the place and each family stays on its own side!"

'Mean And Horrible'

NOLA'S uncontrolled laughter pealed out. "It sounds priceless! Seacliff with a fence down the middle! Anyhow, since I am neither a Russell nor a Mack, I shall interview both sides. Honestly, darlings, it's funny—don't look so tragic. Where's your sense of humor? You make it look and sound like a mountain feud! Don't worry so—the invaders will probably trek back to Texas one of these days and Seacliff can be easily restored."

Thorndyke brightened. "You might be right, Nola. At least it doesn't help matters any for Lyn and me to worry and fret. What do you say, Lyn? Let's agree to forget our neighbors and live our own lives! . . . Is Geoff coming down for dinner tonight?"

"I think so. He said something about a shipment of three ponies due this afternoon—"

"Does he still talk nothing but horses?" Nola groaned. "Geoff is a bore of the first water! How do you bear up under it, Lyn? Oh, I just thought of something—why don't you sell Seacliff to me? That will get rid of your foes and then you can buy it back from me after they've been driven from the promised land."

Jocelyn fidgeted. "No can do, Nola. Grandma took care of that angle. I have to marry old Talbot's grandson before the estate can ever be sold."

Nola whistled softly. "Is he too bad?"

"He's impossible. A—a peasant. He's mean and horrible!"

"Come, now, he couldn't be that bad, Lyn."

"Wait and see. Just wait and see for yourself!"

"I will." Nola fitted a cigarette into her holder, held the flame of her lighter to its end, and puffed reflectively. "I just remembered that neither of you mentioned Bob's attitude toward the squatters. What is Bob doing, anyhow?"

Thorn's mouth pursed primly. "Bob is more hindrance than help. He mingles with the Macks, sympathizes with them, eggs them on, and pretends that he actually likes them! He's making a fool of himself over the young widow and her brat."

"Aha! The plot thickens!" Nola's laugh was indulgent. "Bob was always a non-conformist; at least from your point of view, Thorn. I have an idea he will give me some good advice about giving away my money."

"I don't see why you say that," Thorn objected. "Bob has no respect for money or for the people who have it. Are you serious, Nola, about giving it away?"

"Of course I am. Twenty millions . . . what can I do with it? I can't possibly spend it in a lifetime! I can give half of it away and still have far too much for us and our children and grandchildren, my darling!"

Thorn cleared his throat nervously. "Then why not let me advise you, dear? You always said Grandma Jocelyn was shrewd and she made me trustee of the estate. I've handled the money very well, haven't I, Lyn?"

"You've hung on to it very well!" Jocelyn retorted.

"Oh, let's skip the whole matter," Nola said in sudden exasperation. "I'd like a few weeks of peace."

"Please don't misunderstand," Thorn began, signaling a left turn from the highway into the grounds of Seacliff. "I—"

"Shush," Nola commanded. "Did you arrange for a man to pick up my trunks at the station tomorrow morning? I have hardly a decent rag with me."

Devastatingly Good-Looking

ON THE second morning after her arrival, Nola arose very early. There was determination in her movements as she dressed with studied carelessness in a specially purchased cotton frock and low-heeled sandals. Her hair, which reached below her shoulders, she let hang in girlish disarray. Her basque-style frock, bought yesterday afternoon at an exclusive shop in Santa Barbara, was tremendously becoming; yet, to the inexperienced eye, it would seem merely a blue housedress.

So far, she had not been able to get one single look at any of the Mack family. Thorn and Lyn had seen to that. Well, she was not accustomed to anyone curtailing her movements or knowing what she did. As a matter of fact, she preferred taking the initiative into her own hands, wishing to meet the Macks in her own way.

Now, on tiptoes, she stole down the back stairway past the built-on servants' quarters, and sauntered around the far end of the dividing fence.

She approached a tall young man standing with his back to her. His thick black hair shone in the morning sunlight. He appeared preoccupied in harnessing two horses to a plow. As Nola drew nearer she heard him singing softly in a rich baritone voice. A smile turned up the corners of her mouth.

"Good morning," she said. "Looks like it's going to be hot today."

He finished buckling the last piece of harness before he turned. He looked at her dress; her smiling face; her loose blonde hair. He smiled.

"Hello."

Nola thought: "Lyn must be blind or crazy! The man is devastatingly good-looking!" She asked, "Aren't you young Talbot Mack?"

"Sure. And you?"

"Nola Cranston. I'm visiting the Russells."

"Oh." His smile disappeared. "Bob told me about you. You're the heiress from Boston who is going to marry Thorndyke. I hardly expected to see you on this side of the fence."

"And why not?" she demanded. "I saw no 'Keep Off' signs."

His eyes were guarded, distrustful. "Haven't you heard about people who live on the wrong side of the railroad tracks? I live on the wrong side of this fence."

"Nonsense. There isn't any right and wrong side unless you believe there is. And I don't. You sound as if you had an inferiority complex. What's the matter with you, anyhow? You're young and healthy and good to look at."

"And poor as Job's turkey," he added. "And a farmer. 'Peasant' is the term I've had applied to me lately."

"Which sounds like Thorn," Nola smiled. "Surely you pay no attention to him? He's really a darling but he doesn't realize the day of ancestor worship is past. Don't tell me you haven't got a sense of humor? I think this whole darned business is the funniest gag I ever heard!"

Tally met her sparkling dark eyes. A slow grin spread over his face. "Maybe you are right. Maybe I lost my sense of humor when I lost the last cotton crop in Texas."

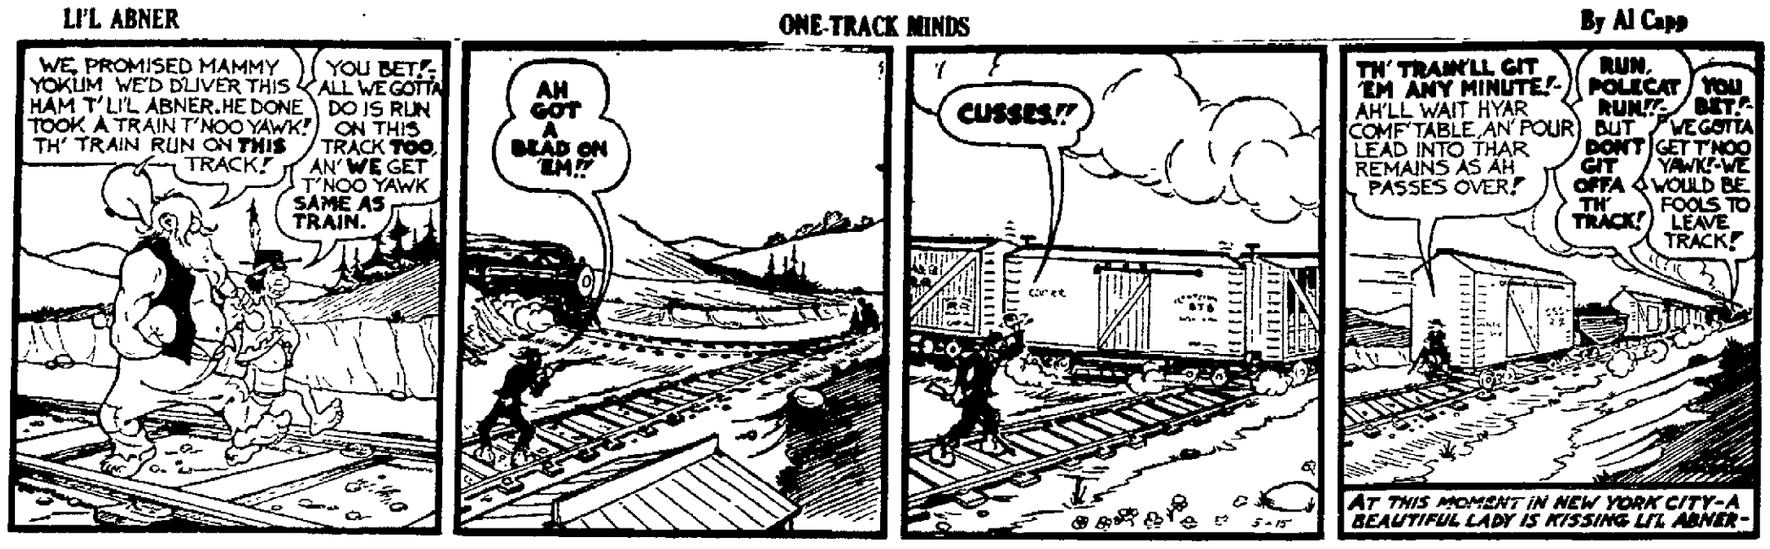

Continued tomorrow.

K. of C. Will Meet At Hall Tonight

Tonight at 8:30 at the K. of C. clubhouse, Kingston Council No. 675, Knights of Columbus, will gather for one of the most interesting regular meetings of the local council during the year. The most important feature of the regular meeting will be the nomination of officers for election to the council offices for the next year.

As a part of the entertainment of the evening, the movies taken at the time of the communion-breakfast by Al Weiereich and Bill O'Reilly will be displayed. Practically every member who attended the communion and breakfast can be recognized readily.

Fred Van Deusen, local magician, will be present with his usual good tricks together with several new ones which he claims are sure fire.

Bill Raible, tenor, will offer several popular numbers in the style which has gained him favor.

Grand Knight Joseph J. Murphy announced the meeting will get underway at 8:30 o'clock sharp and refreshments and a social hour will conclude the evening's session.

When buying dotted curtains, make sure the dots are self-dots and are woven into the material, otherwise they will pull or wash out.

Beauty

These things are more beautiful
to me than the sunset on a rolling sea:
A little boy with manly grace
Trying to fill his Daddy's place;
A mother bravely fighting on
Long after strength and hope seem gone;
A father with his clothes worn thin
That children may hold up their chin;
The baby girl who runs to meet
Her brother coming down the street.
Yes, these are beautiful to me,
Filling my heart with ecstasy.

"Pa," said Johnny, looking up from his composition, "is 'waterworks' all one word, or do you spell it with a hydrant in the middle?"

A beauty parlor may help elderly women to look younger, but it can never help them remember where they put their spectacles.

Guest—Do you operate a bus between the hotel and the railroad station?

Manager of fashionable hotel—No sir.

Guest—That's strange. All my friends said you would get me coming and going.

The Story of a Dark Night

Night come stealin',
So am I,
Black as pitch,
So am I;
White hens quick,
So am I;
Things start flyin',
So am I,
Hen get stuffed,
So am I;
Feathers found,
So am I;
Henhouse locked up,
So am I.

"Arithmetic is a science of truth," said the professor, earnestly. "Figures can't lie. For instance, if one man can build a house in twelve days, twelve men can build a house in one."

"Yes," interrupted a quick-brained student. "Then 288 will build it in one hour, 17,280 in one minute and 1,036,800 in one second. And I don't believe they could lay one brick in that time! Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in six days, six ships can cross it in one day. Or is that arithmetic?"

Friends

Friends in this world of hurry and work and sudden end,
If a thought comes quick of doing
a kindness to a friend,
Do it that very moment! Don't put it off, don't wait!
What's the use of doing a kindness if you do it a day too late?

Mrs. Gabber (nagging)—You were always a fault-finder!

Gabber—Yes, dear; I guess that's why I found you.

He—Would you love your husband if he had only one eye?

She—Why, no. How terrible!

He—Then let me carry that umbrella.

EDUCATION—Never be content with what you have learned. Ever be on the lookout for additional knowledge. We must keep pace with the world or we are definitely out of the race. The man who graduates today and stops learning tomorrow is uneducated the day after.

SODAS SETTLE THEIR NERVES

These hard Gloucester, Mass., fishermen went through such a trying experience when their schooner and another collided and sank that their first thought on reaching Yarmouth, N. S., in safety was a good drink to steady their nerves. And so here they are getting their bracers at the Yarmouth drug store's ice cream soda fountain, (left to right) Ellsworth Buchanan, Fred Bourque and James Conway. One man died and 47 rowed 150 miles to shore and safety.

Schwartz Leads by 10,000 Votes in Booster Campaign

Louis Schwartz holds a lead of 10,000 votes in the Central Business Association "Boost Central Broadway" merchandising contest as the contest enters the last three days.

Miss Marilyn Maines, who has been either in first or second place since the start of the contest, dropped to third place in the standings this week as Miss Blanche Burr of Jansen avenue moved up to second place.

Although the top positions are somewhat separated in the vote totals, a closer race has developed in the lower brackets for the smaller awards.

The contest closes Wednesday evening at 6 p. m. All votes must be in previous to closing time, either at campaign headquarters, 556 Broadway, or at any of the various stores. All participating merchants are urged to bring their votes to campaign headquarters as soon after 6 o'clock Wednesday evening as possible, in order that tabulation of the final totals may be started.

The winners of the twelve awards will be made Thursday evening at the Broadway theatre at which time the Central Business Men have arranged a gala program to be presented along with the feature movie of the evening. "Husbands Are Good For Something," a feature movie cast at Hollywood, will be presented through the efforts of the Binnewater Lake Ice Co.

A meeting of the contest committee will be held at campaign headquarters Tuesday evening, May 16.

Militia Turns Back Miners

Harlan, was Treed Bates, 33-year-old motorman for a coal company. Nolan said the man was shot once in the head in front of the home of Walter Rowe, 25, his brother-in-law. Rowe was placed in the county jail.

Deputy Sheriff Woodrow Howard said he shot Elbert Clark, 28, when he slashed his coat with a knife.

Refusal of the Harlan, Hazard and Big Sandy operators, along with representatives of certain fields in West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee to sign a "union shop" contract with the United Mine Workers when other operators' units did in New York Saturday, developed quick action by Governor Chandler, who previously had announced he would send troops to operate the mines if there was no agreement by this date.

Iron is rarely found in pure form, except in meteorites. It must go through many costly processes before industry can use it.

Rites for Rondout Pastor to Be Held

Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street.

The services will commence at 7:45 o'clock.

The Rev. Mr. Doherty was called to the pastorate of the church to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Rev. James N. Armstrong, Jr., who had accepted a call to the Presbyterian Church in Southampton, L. I., after serving the local church as its pastor for five years.

The Rev. Mr. Doherty came to Kingston from Milford, N. J., where he had served the Presbyterian Church there as pastor for 14 years.

Presbyterian Men To Meet Tuesday

The Men's Club of the Rondout Presbyterian Church will meet Tuesday evening in the chapel. A feature of the meeting will be the movies, "The New Oregon Trail," depicting views of the salmon fisheries of the Columbia river, shooting the rapids of the McKenzie and viewing the unspoiled scenery of the Wallola Mountains, and thence down to the sea and along the beautiful and rugged coast line.

At the close of the pictures refreshments will be served and a social hour enjoyed. This meeting is open to all men of the congregation.

St. Peter's Holy Name Society to Meet Tonight

The regular monthly meeting of St. Peter's Holy Name Society will be held this evening at St. Peter's School at 8 o'clock.

This will be the last meeting of the society for the duration of the summer months and an invitation has been extended to the Rev. Clarance E. Brown and his Men's Club to attend the entertainment which will follow the business session of the Holy Name organization.

Arrangements have been made to show a sports film and the usual refreshments will be provided.

LEADERS SIGN 'BEST' COAL PACT

John L. Lewis (right) signs in New York the new wage contract agreement which ended a deadlock between his United Mines Workers and 15 of the 21 operators' associations of the Appalachian soft coal area. Left is Charles P. O'Neill, spokesman for the operators, who called the agreement "the best contract ever signed in the Appalachian region." Center is Dr. John R. Steelman federal conciliator, who smiles in relief because the settlement ended a mine shutdown of more than a month.

No Catskill Water To World's Fair

Long Island Pumping Depots Sending Huge Supply Daily to Grounds

People attending the New York World's Fair are not being treated to good old Catskill mountain water. The fair, which incidentally is being supplied free of charge with all its supply of water by the city, is a very large consumer of water. With its many visitors, its commercial uses and its fountains and pools there is a big demand for water. The supply nowever is being derived from the Long Island pumping stations and none of the Catskill mountain water is being sent to the Flushing fair grounds.

From the Ashokan reservoir a full aqueduct is now being sent to the city. This has been true for the past year and thus far in 1939 the Catskill systems have been sending daily a full aqueduct to the down river distribution points.

Inquiry today at the offices of the Department of Water Supply brought forth the information that there was no apparent increase in consumption of Catskill water because of the fair and the local supply was sending a maximum flow daily.

15 Are Arrested On Traffic Charges

Ray Winne, motorcycle deputy working out of the sheriff's office, made 15 arrests on Route 28 Sunday of motorists charged with violation of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, in most cases the charge being reckless driving.

Two of those taken into custody pleaded not guilty and their cases were set down for hearings before Justice John Watzka of East Kingston Friday, May 19, at 7 p. m. They were Rodman M. Price of Connecticut, real estate man, and William Fahnestock of 17 West 54th street, New York city, a broker. Bail was set at $10 in each case.

Others who paid fines when arraigned before Justice John Watzka, were: Joseph W. Wright, Prattsville milk truck driver, $3. Cecil L. Decker, 44 Abeel street, Kingston, $5. Clifford M. Shenkard, Highmount, $5. Edward V. Valen, Riveredge, N. J., $5. Charles R. Knight, 718 Broadway, Kingston, $5. Wesley M. Bishop, Syracuse, $3. Matthew Kiley, Mechanicville, $10. Gardiner Man Held for Theft of Automobile

James Barrey, 32, of Gardiner, was arrested Sunday by Corporal Norman Baker and arraigned before Justice I. C. Barnes on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. He was committed to the Ulster county jail to await action of the grand jury.

It is alleged that Barrey took a Chevrolet sedan which John D. Lorenzo of Highland had left standing in front of Yeaple's Hotel at Denton's Corners, Sunday night. Corporal Baker said that Barrey drove the car a short distance toward Gardiner and then ran it off the road, the car turning upside down with Barrey inside. He was still there when the corporal arrived some 20 minutes afterward and helped him out.

Cases Disposed of In Police Court

A wild tale of men seeking to shoot and kill him was related to City Judge Matthew V. Cahill this morning by Charles N. Prouty, 50, of Glens Falls, when Prouty was arraigned on a charge of vagrancy.

Prouty, who declared he was in the antique business, told of going for a ride to Philadelphia with a man in an automobile. When they reached Philadelphia the man decided to continue on to Baltimore to visit his sister.

Prouty said he did not care to go to Baltimore and the man went on without him. He then came to Kingston Sunday morning in a bus and stopped here enroute to Glens Falls.

While here he overheard some men talking about shooting him, and he became nervous and decided the safest place for him was at the Kingston Hospital.

He was wandering about the rear of the hospital last night when the police received a telephone call, and placed him under arrest.

Judge Cahill gave Prouty an opportunity of continuing his journey home.

Patrick McGlynn, 65, of this city, arrested for public intoxication, was fined $5.

John Scott, 59, of New York city, who said he came to Kingston on a tug, was fined $3 for public intoxication.

Local Broadcasters

Gordon Craig, Jr., of Kingston will be heard with his Taitians, as guest artists on the Hudson Valley Varieties tomorrow morning at 11:30 o'clock over WGNY at Newburgh. He will be accompanied by Clifford and Herbert Every on Spanish guitars and by Donald Jacob on the violin. Charles Graham of Stone Ridge will take part in a dramatic sketch.

Saegesser Woodstock Victor; Boxing Resumes Here Friday

One-Armed Driver Wins Main Race Before 4,000 Fans

Plenty of Thrills for Season's Opening Crowd—Rhymer Takes Two of the Prizes

Woodstock, May 15.—(Special)—Wesley Saegesser of San Antonio, one-armed midget speedster, driving a $4,000 Offenhauser-powered automobile, yesterday won the 25-lap Woodstock Legion Speedway Special over one of the east's best fields and set up a new time trial record of :17.70.

The events which opened the 1939 racing season at the only midget track in the Hudson valley, sent more than 4,000 thrill-soaked fans home late in the afternoon with the feeling that they had witnessed one of the most superlative speed exhibitions ever staged in this vicinity.

Finishing behind the mighty Saegesser were Chet Gibbons of Freeport and Nutley; Rufus Anderson, Brighton, Mass., racer who last year copped one of the 25-lap features; Len Fanelli, of New Rochelle, who finished a short distance ahead of his brother, Harry. The event paid off in five places.

The prize for the best appearing ensemble of driver, pit crew and car was awarded by a trio of judges to Ben Rhymer. The judges were C. E. Gradwell, editor of the Overlook, Woodstock; Bob Brown, of the King Manufacturing Co., Kingston; and Joe Kelly, sports editor of The Freeman.

Three crashes which brought the spectators gasping from their seats, involved first the car of Lou Bolker, No. 33, of Paterson, N. J., and sent Bolker to the Kingston Hospital in the Conner's ambulaice; a nasty roll-over in which the driver, Nelson Shultis, of Wittenberg, sustained a fractured hand and bruised wrist, was treated at Kingston Hospital and returned home; and a quick flip of Bill West's No. 2 from which the pilot, Jazzy Chambers, escaped with a swollen lip and a shredded shirt.

The accident to Bolker's car occurred in the second qualifying heat at the throat of the south bend when he struck a hay bale. As his car rolled over the No. 10 of Tom Simonetti, of Waltham, Mass., crashed into the churning midget and pinned Volker underneath. He was picked up immediately, placed in the ambulance, rushed to the office of Dr. George Bassow in Woodstock and thence to the Kingston Hospital for observation and X-rays of the spine.

Following Bolker's accident the speedway officials delayed the events while waiting for the return of the ambulance. After a half-hour had elapsed Starter Paul Dominique took a poll of the drivers and when they signified their willingness a substitute automobile was placed at the ambulance station and the events went on.

Soon after Nelson Shultis rolled over when a car which had bounded up the bank at the outrun of the north bend smashed into him along the stretch coming into the judges' stand. Shultis was taken to the doctor's office in the substitute ambulance.

Chambers sustained his spill in almost the identical spot where Volker cracked-up and due to slipping into a bale of hay. Chambers was taken off in a Conner's ambulance which had returned by this time, but was treated on the track property. Both Shultis and Chambers made light of their experiences.

Saegesser Makes Record

Ted Rhymer, of Kingston, who last year drove for Ben Rhymer in the latter's R1, substituted for Len Fanelli who arrived too late for the time trial and set the first best time of the day in the first ride he ever took in the glistening red and silver R2. Rhymer's time was :18.65.

This mark stood for several trials and was broken by Charles Menges, driving No. 10 who turned the track in :18.40. Chet Gibbons, driving his outboard No. 7D, chalked up :18.10.

It was shortly afterward that Saegresser, a favorite on Southwest and Midwest ovals, spun out of the pits with his purring No. 7 Offenhauser and burned up the asphalt for the neat time trial record of :17.70. Saegesser received a big round of applause for his skillful driving.

Winners of Heats

Len Fanelli, driving Rhymer's R2, took the first qualifying heat in 2:27.84 and in doing so defeated a speedy field which included Chambers, Art Spore, Frank Simmonetti, Bill DeMosh, Brenton Dunham, Rufus Anderson and Saegesser. Wes Saegesser came in second and Jazzy Chambers third. Distance in each qualifying heat was eight laps, reversed starts.

The second qualifying heat was won by Chet Gibbons in 2:40.25. Drivers entered were Slim McKee, driving for Jack Franckling; Bob Wright, of Poughkeepsie; Pickles Bicklehaupt of Freeport, one of midgetdom's best drivers; Henry Fanelli, Don Jackson, Larry Simonetti, Ed Buckley and Lou Bolker. Henry Fanelli came in second and Bicklehaupt was third.

The third qualifying heat was taken by Carl Carlson of Albany, driving for Cliff Barnett, in 2:36.64 against Joe LeMire, Bert Lundgren, Larry Simmonetti, Charlie Street, Pip Henson and Charles Menges. Street came in second and Larry Simmonetti third.

The fourth qualifying heat was finished without any official time and was awarded to Al Karp driving No. 44 after Shultis' accident because the race had run six of the eight laps. Johnnie Nemo finished second and Ralph Palmer third.

Semi-Final Races

Len Fanelli, who pushed Rhymer's car for all it had in it and declared it one of the "sweetest" jobs he ever had driven, continued his winnings of the day by taking the first semi-final race of 10 laps in 3:30.12, defeating Saegesser by an eighth of a lap, while Rufe Anderson took third place.

The second semi-final race was won by Chet Gibbons, Al Karp second, and Ken Gallup, driving for Gus Paradise of Albany, was third. The winning time was 3:29.40.

The consolation event of laps went to Larry Hageman, No. 61, Chauncey Maggiacomo of Millbrook was second; Larry Shurter of Ashokan, third; Bill DeMosh was fourth and Ed Buckley was fifth.

Dispute Over Final

At the end of the final event of 25 laps Len Fanelli protested to Starter Paul Dominique that the race had begun before proper post positions had been taken by several of the contestants.

As the cars after two or three warmup laps came into the stretch Dominique gave the green flag to the lead cars of Saegesser and Gibbons and the two zoomed off in one of the hottest final contests ever staged on the local oval.

Fanelli, however, raised his hand in immediate protest, but his gesture was lost in the surge of cars and he continued in the race, taking fourth place. He registered vociferous protest, however, and insisted his proper position had been lost.

Praise for Spectators

Theron Lasher, track manager, was strong in his praise for the patient manner in which the audience endured the delay occasioned by the accidents to drivers.

"I've been approached by several of the racers themselves," he said, "who remarked to me about the orderly manner in which the spectators accepted the delays. It goes to show what good sports there are in this section. To show them we appreciate it all, we're going to put on a better show on May 28 and ask them all to come back."

The summaries:

First qualifying heat, 8 laps, reversed start: L. Fanelli, Saegesser, Chambers. Time: 2:37.84.

Second qualifying heat, 8 laps, reversed start: Gibbons, H. Fanelli, Bicklehaupt. Time: 2:40.25.

Third qualifying heat, 8 laps, reversed start: Carlson, Street, L. Simonetti. Time: 2:36.64.

Fourth qualifying heat, 8 laps, reversed start: Karp, Palmer, Nemo. No official time.

First semi-final, 10 laps: L. Fanelli, Saegesser, Anderson. Time 3:30.12.

Second semi-final, 10 laps: Gibbons, Karp, K. Gallup. Time: 3:29.40.

Scorers were Bernard Lapo and Kenneth Wilson. Traffic was controlled by Sheriff Abram Molyneaux's deputies and the ambulance was escorted on trips by a car from the local station of the state troopers. Members of Woodstock Post, No. 1026, American Legion, were in charge of parking the cars.

FIRE CHIEF WINS MARATHON

Eleanor Holm, swimming star, hands the trophy to Clayton Bishop, fire chief of Onset, Mass., after he became the first man to win twice the difficult Albany-New York outboard motorboat marathon. He drove his class B boat over the 180-mile course at an average speed of 40.681 M. P. H. He also won in 1936.

Bishop Wins Again In Outboard Race, Breaking Record

New York, May 15 (AP)—Clayton Bishop broke two records yesterday in the twelfth Albany-New York motorboat marathon.

It was a record that the Onset, Mass., fire chief won the race for the second time. He won it in 1936 and yesterday became the first "repeater" in the history of the dash down the Hudson. He was in the money for the fifth time in six years, and the finishing average generally doesn't run that high. In fact only 38 of the 99 boats finished, and conditions were unusually good for racing.

Bishop also smashed a speed record for Class B motors as he led the parade of "chips." The new motor which his firemen gave him drove his little hydroplane over the 130 miles of placid river in three hours, 11 minutes and 22 seconds for an average of 40.681 miles per hour.

The old record, set by Bishop in 1936, was 37.1 and the second finisher, Arthur Wullschleger, Cornell junior from Larchmont, N. Y., also beat that with a 39.904.

Other Records Fall

Records also were smashed for Class F outboards, 225 cubic inch inboard hydroplanes and unlimited inboards. Charles Mack of New Milford, N. J., third driver to finish, hoisted the Class F mark to 47.407 M. P. H. to wipe out Charles Cabot's 44.4 record set in 1932.

Baby, piloted by Zalmon G. Simmons of Greenwich, Conn., negotiated the distance in 2:25:55 for an average of 53.353 M. P. H., beating Gar Wood's 1925 record for 225 cubic inch racers. David Gerli of New York drove Lady Gen III to a record of 47.654 miles per hour for the unlimited class.

Upstaters Share Honors With Mets

Elmira, N. Y., May 15 (AP)—Upstate keglers shared championship honors equally with players from the New York city area today as the state bowling tournament ended.

Ridgewood's Tallyho's won the five man team championship and L. Anageros, New York, took the singles title.

For the upstaters, O. Mann and J. Mann, Buffalo, were the winners in the doubles and B. Bonarrico, Batavia, captured the all event championship.

The Tally-Ho's score of 3,097 netted them the top prize money ($275) of the five-week tournament. They won an additional $25 for the high game in the five man division with 1,087.

Arnold Cure Is With Ithaca Nine

Arnold G. Cure of Pine Hill and Albert Gruner of Highland are on a trip with the Ithaca College varsity nine, which tackles Arnold College at New Haven, Conn., and Seton Hall at South Orange.

With the second half gone, the Bombers have won four games and lost five. Three of their defeats were by one-run margins. They have been playing strong teams.

Cure, a junior in the physical education department, and Gruner, a sophomore, in the same branch of education, are both pitchers.

Racer Loses Leg

Langhorne, Pa., May 15 (AP)—Racing Driver Bud Henderson of Akron, Ohio, his left leg amputated, faced the end of his speedway career today. Henderson, 31, in the Bristol, Pa., Hospital, was hurt when his car overturned on the Langhorne track yesterday.

Colonials Prepare For Tuesday Game With Mohawk Nine

Manager Fred Davi put his Kingston Colonials, of the New York State Baseball League, through a two-hour workout at the Athletic Field yesterday afternoon in preparation for the opening game on Tuesday. Hank Bozzi's Mohawk Giants, champs of the loop in the last two seasons, will share the spotlight.

Following the workout Davi told the writer that Toddy Uhl will start against the Giants on Tuesday. Uhl began his career with the Colonials last season. When Glen Falls makes its appearance here on Friday Charlie Neff will get the call for mound duty.

When the Colonials take the field tomorrow night at the Athletic Field two new faces will be in the infield line-up, Jack Schatzel, who supplanted Paul Joyce, and Bill Finger, stellar shortstop. Finger has always been a standout man for Saugerties and now with the chance to work in an organized league, his playing should be even better.

With Finger and Charlie Francello working at the keystone combination, the Colonials will be strong. Both of these players are fast and fairly good hitters.

With the expenses already mounting up for Manager Davi it is the hope of the team that the Kingston fans will patronize the game tomorrow.

Bolker Sustains Fracture of Rib

Dr. George Bassow of Woodstock reported today as head of the medical unit of the Woodstock Legion Speedway, Inc., that Lou Bolker, of Paterson, N. J., who was injured at the quarter-mile oval for midget automobiles yesterday, is improved today and expects to return home Tuesday.

Bolker was sent to the Kingston Hospital in a Conners ambulance with Nurse Miss Dorothy Shultis of Woodstock. An X-ray taken at the hospital showed the fracture of a rib next to the spine.

Just Before the Battle—

Alderman-at-Large John Schwenk gave a few pointers on how he'd hold the horsehide for that first pitch opening the City Baseball League to the rival flingers, Leo "Teeny" Komosa of the Wiltwycks, left, and Big Joe Mahar of the Grunenwald's.

And then the popular president of the Common Council posed with the league officials, Melvin "Meb" Lunch, groundskeeper; Dick Dulin and William "Pie" Murphy, umpires; Jimmy "Adjective" Geoghan, secretary and publicist, and Ed Banks, veteran treasurer and collector of the twi-loop.

Central Recreation Bowling Banquet Will Be Thursday

The first annual banquet of the Central Recreation League will be held Thursday evening at Huling's Barn at 7 o'clock. A program of speeches, entertainment and music is being arranged by the committee in charge.

The highlight of the program, of course, will be the presentation of championship trophies to the members of the Frank and Charles Barber Shop team, winners of first place. Trophies also will be awarded to the Jones Dairy squad for taking second place.

Joe Cherry and Jimmy Turck, who rolled high triple and high single respectively in the league, will receive trophies.

Efforts are being made to secure Peter Keresman, president of the Kingston Bowling Association, as guest speaker.

Tickets will be available tonight and will be distributed by Secretary Phinney. Captains are urged to make a report to Secretary Phinney no later than Tuesday night as to the number of reservations they desire.

Tigers Victors

Whitey's Tigers trounced the Clintondale nine 25 to 5 at Forsyth Park yesterday. Hasset and Kushner hit homers. "Red" Schibelski drove in six runs. The batteries were Elsworth and Hughes pitching and Barringer and Kushner on receiving end. For Clintondale Jones and Smith.

The dream of Ford Frick, National League president, visualizing eight clubs tied at the .500 mark on Labor Day looked pretty possible as a Centennial Year feature when the National League standings on the morning of May 5 showed the first-place Bees only a game and a half ahead of second place, the last place Pirates a game and a half below 7th place, and the other six clubs blanketed cozily under a 1-game margin, second place only one game ahead of seventh.

Hank (Old Golden-rod) Gowdy, coach of the Cincy Reds, is the only player who participated in that all-time long-distance baseball game, the 26-inning Boston-Brooklyn tie on May 1, 1920, who is active in the major leagues today.

Joneses and Independents In City Loop Clash Tonight

Tonight, at 6:15, Jones Dairy and the Independents hook up in the City League's feature diamond duel at the Athletic Field. The Dairymen and the Merchants are tied for the loop leadership, both having emerged victorious in their single start. Ad Jones' boys administered a sound 10-0 whitewashing to Grunenwalds Friday while the Independents took Boiceville over the hurdles by an 8-1 count.

Bob "Schoolboy" Bush will be on the hill for the business boys with Joe Brown or big Julius Chick toeing the mound for the milk merchants. Bush flashed brilliant form against Boiceville and seems set for another sensational hurling season. Jones Dairy put on another copyrighted exhibition of heads-up ball making three hits account for 10 markers.

With both Jones Dairy and the Independents out for a win to step into the leadership, the season's best ball game to date should be unreeled tonight for the patrons of the twi-circuit. There will be a special meeting of all managers in the home-plate bleachers directly following tonight's contest. All are urged to be present to discuss matters of great importance.

When Paul Waner, Lloyd Waner and Fern Bell compose the Pittsburgh Pirates outfield lineup, there's a common geographical bond for them—the thriving city of Ada, Okla. Bell was born there. The brothers went to college there, their alma mater being Oklahoma East Central State Teachers' College.

Like Babe Ruth and some other sluggers whose specialty was homer-hitting, Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn Dodgers' four-bagger pacemaker, started his baseball career as a left-hand pitcher.

Amateur Card on Tap at Auditorium Featuring Sluggers

First Fistic Program in Three Weeks Expected to Draw Crowd—Slam Bang Battlers Matched

Fans anxiously awaiting news about boxing are promised a good amateur card for Friday night at the municipal auditorium. The bill will be the first in three weeks and features some of the best sluggers among the simon pures.

On top of the card are two matches that rate as sensational attractions. In one Sergeant Perry, Diamond Belt light-heavy-champion, formerly of West Point, will meet Dutch Williams of Newburgh, and in the other Monk Armstrong will be paired with Buddy Bookman, the fiery Hurleyville slugger, who made a hit on the last card.

Perry, who has fought the best of them, and recently represented the Adirondack A. A. U. on the east coast in the national amateur tournament at San Francisco, should have his hands full with the hard punching Dutch Williams, who is a favorite at the auditorium.

Buddy Bookman, who fought a sensational battle in his first appearance here, and Monk Armstrong should give the fans a lot of action as they vie for the favoritism of the house, which is expected to be packed to capacity for the fistic program.

The rest of the card looks as good as the two top bouts. It is as follows:

Carl Beck, Poughkeepsie slugger, vs. Joe Andrews of Albany.

Charlie Forezzi, Albany, vs. Charley "Honeyboy" Raigins, Saugerties.

Jackie Hogan, Kingston pride, vs. Lennie Rubiletto, Albany.

Leo Sarinelli, Albany, Adirondack A. A. U. bantamweight champion, vs. Tony Gartex, rugged Poughkeepsie battler, who won the Golden Gloves novice title here.

Talk among fight fans indicates a crowd as many have missed the weekly fisticuff programs during the recent layoff.

SODAS SETTLE THEIR NERVES

These hard Gloucester, Mass., fishermen went through such a trying experience when their schooner and another collided and sank that their first thought on reaching Yarmouth, N. S., in safety was a good drink to steady their nerves. And so here they are getting their bracers at the Yarmouth drug store's ice cream soda fountain, (left to right) Ellsworth Buchanan, Fred Bourque and James Conway. One man died and 47 rowed 150 miles to shore and safety.

Schwartz Leads by 10,000 Votes in Booster Campaign

Louis Schwartz holds a lead of 10,000 votes in the Central Business Association "Boost Central Broadway" merchandising contest as the contest enters the last three days.

Miss Marilyn Maines, who has been either in first or second place since the start of the contest, dropped to third place in the standings this week as Miss Blanche Burr of Jansen avenue moved up to second place.

Although the top positions are somewhat separated in the vote totals, a closer race has developed in the lower brackets for the smaller awards.

The contest closes Wednesday evening at 6 p. m. All votes must be in previous to closing time, either at campaign headquarters, 556 Broadway, or at any of the various stores. All participating merchants are urged to bring their votes to campaign headquarters as soon after 6 o'clock Wednesday evening as possible, in order that tabulation of the final totals may be started

The winners of the twelve awards will be made Thursday evening at the Broadway theatre at which time the Central Business Men have arranged a gala program to be presented along with the feature movie of the evening. "Husbands Are Good For Something," a feature movie cast at Hollywood, will be presented through the efforts of the Binnewater Lake Ice Co.

A meeting of the contest committee will be held at campaign headquarters Tuesday evening, May 16.

Militia Turns Back Miners

Harlan, was Treed Bates, 33-year-old motorman for a coal company. Nolan said the man was shot once in the head in front of the home of Walter Rowe, 25, his brother-in-law. Rowe was placed in the county jail.

Deputy Sheriff Woodrow Howard said he shot Elbert Clark, 28, when he slashed his coat with a knife.

Refusal of the Harlan, Hazard and Big Sandy operators, along with representatives of certain fields in West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee to sign a "union shop" contract with the United Mine Workers when other operators' units did in New York Saturday, developed quick action by Governor Chandler, who previously had announced he would send troops to operate the mines if there was no agreement by this date.

Iron is rarely found in pure form, except in meteorites. It must go through many costly processes before industry can use it.

No Catskill Water To World's Fair

Long Island Pumping Depots Sending Huge Supply Daily to Grounds

People attending the New York World's Fair are not being treated to good old Catskill mountain water. The fair, which incidentally is being supplied free of charge with all its supply of water by the city, is a very large consumer of water. With its many visitors, its commercial uses and its fountains and pools there is a big demand for water. The supply however is being derived from the Long Island pumping stations and none of the Catskill mountain water is being sent to the Flushing fair grounds.

From the Ashokan reservoir a full aqueduct is now being sent to the city. This has been true for the past year and thus far in 1939 the Catskill systems have been sending daily a full aqueduct to the down river distribution points.

Inquiry today at the offices of the Department of Water Supply brought forth the information that there was no apparent increase in consumption of Catskill water because of the fair and the local supply was sending a maximum flow daily.

15 Are Arrested On Traffic Charges

Ray Winne, motorcycle deputy working out of the sheriff's office, made 15 arrests on Route 28 Sunday of motorists charged with violation of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, in most cases the charge being reckless driving.

Two of those taken into custody pleaded not guilty and their cases were set down for hearings before Justice John Watzka of East Kingston Friday, May 19, at 7 p m. They were Rodman M. Price of Connecticut, real estate man, and William Fahnestock of 17 West 54th street, New York city, a broker. Bail was set at $10 in each case.

Others who paid fines when arraigned before Justice John Watzka, were: Joseph W. Wright, Prattsville milk truck driver, $3. Cecil L. Decker, 44 Abeel street, Kingston, $5. Clifford M. Shenkard, Highmount, $5. Edward V. Valen, Riveredge, N. J., $5. Charles R. Knight, 718 Broadway, Kingston, $5. Wesley M. Bishop, Syracuse, $3. Matthew Kiley, Mechanicville, $10. Rudolf de Groote, The Bronx, $10. Alfred W. Rose, Shokan, $5. John Lane, Prattsville, $5. Larry E. Hadden, Carlstadt, N. J., $5 J. F. Lewis, Albany, $5. George A. Shea, West Hurley, $5.

Gardiner Man Held for Theft of Automobile

James Barrey, 32, of Gardiner, was arrested Sunday by Corporal Norman Baker and arraigned before Justice I. C. Barnes on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. He was committed to the Ulster county jail to await action of the grand jury.

It is alleged that Barrey took a Chevrolet sedan which John D. Lorenzo of Highland had left standing in front of Yeaple's Hotel at Denton's Corners, Sunday night. Corporal Baker said that Barrey drove the car a short distance toward Gardiner and then ran it off the road, the car turning upside down with Barrey inside. He was still there when the corporal arrived some 20 minutes afterward and helped him out.

Cases Disposed of In Police Court

A wild tale of men seeking to shoot and kill him was related to City Judge Matthew V. Cahill this morning by Charles N. Prouty, 50, of Glens Falls, when Prouty was arraigned on a charge of vagrancy.

Prouty, who declared he was in the antique business, told of going for a ride to Philadelphia with a man in an automobile. When they reached Philadelphia the man decided to continue on to Baltimore to visit his sister.

Prouty said he did not care to go to Baltimore and the man went on without him. He then came to Kingston Sunday morning in a bus and stopped here enroute to Glens Falls.

While here he overheard some men talking about shooting him, and he became nervous and decided the safest place for him was at the Kingston Hospital.

He was wandering about the rear of the hospital last night when the police received a telephone call, and placed him under arrest.

Judge Cahill gave Prouty an opportunity of continuing his journey home.

Patrick McGlynn, 65, of this city, arrested for public intoxication, was fined $5.

John Scott, 59, of New York city, who said he came to Kingston on a tug, was fined $3 for public intoxication.

Local Broadcasters

He will be accompanied by Clifford and Herbert Every on Spanish guitars and by Donald Jacob on the violin. Charles Graham of Stone Ridge will take part in a dramatic sketch.
